Lendon, secretary of state, Friday,

this time last year.

February figures for this year show a total of $620,862.85, up to and in-window in the office.

The sales for January, 1923, totaled $189,690.82, making a grand total for the two months of $810,553.67.
The number of tags issued during

February was 71,000, 63,000 being

The figures for 1923 are approximately $10,000 ahead of those of 1922, for the two months.

BROTHER CHARGES ARSON TO BROTHER IN WARE COUNTY

Waycross, Ga., March 2.—(Special.) Brother was arrested against brother this morning when S. F. Jeffords received a preliminary hearing before Justice of Peace Wilbur Sweet, charged with the burning of his brother's barn.

The brother, R. R. Jeffords, stated at the hearing that his barn was burned early Monday morning on his plantation near Kettle Creek. He awoke, he stated, to find the barn in a blaze and calling his son rushed to the scene of the fire. As he approached the barn, he claims that he saw his brother run out of the building and disappear in the darkness. He further claimed that evidence that kerosene had been used in the burning of the building was found.

S. F. Jeffords denied that he had any part in the barn burning, and produced several witnesses to verify his statement that he was at home at the time of the fire. However, he was bound over to the grand jury.

Upshaw Would Have Solons' Pay Raised to $10,000

Declares Some Congressmen Will Have to Borrow to Make Ends Meet.

Washington, March 2.—Declaring some of the strongest men in the house had confessed to him that they would have to borrow money to take their families home after March 4, Representative Upshaw, democrat, of Georgia, introduced a resolution today to increase the salaries of senators and representatives to $10,000 a year.

Mr. Upshaw quoted Franklin K. Lane, secretary of the interior, as having said "You congressmen would increase your salaries to at least $10,000 a year, if you were not a pack of cowards," and added:

"Gentlemen, I am not afraid. I suppose I will be roundly criticised for this but I am willing to suffer for the good of the order."

The resolution also would increase the compensation of delegates and resident commissioners of Porto Rico and Philippines to $10,000.

Couldn't Save.

Mr. Upshaw said he came to congress with the idea that he could "salt down" half his pay, but had learned that it was "not equal to the demands upon it."

"No district wants a 'little' man as its representative," he said. "He must live and move as a leader of opinion, of generous activities and manly opportunities and responsibilities."

"Compelled to make the race for

Ford Gets Permit To Develop Power At Western Dam

Company Contemplates Large Plant at St. Paul, Near Site of Waterworks.

Washington, March 2.—The Ford Motor company was granted a preliminary permit today by the federal power commission to develop power at the high dam, erected across the re-election every two years," said the Georgian, "he usually finds expensive opposition developing before his campaign expenses have been covered for the last time, and thus the wheel turns round and round and leaves him every year bound tighter hand and foot. If he wins it is bad enough, but if he loses, ah, gentlemen, it is like forcing a man to pay his own funeral expenses."

Leads Simple Life.

Mr. Upshaw said he led the "simple life," not smoking, chewing, drinking nor "cussing." "I do not try to do anything that is expensive," he added, "except try to be a decent congressman in Washington."

A man would have to be a "hard-boiled skinfliant," he said, "to turn a deaf ear to all the demands of charity met by a member of congress."

The Georgian issued a warning that unless "salaries were increased congress would 'degenerate' into two widening classes—the rich and men of small calibre to whom the compensation looked like a 'good thing.'"

He said he would press his resolution also at the next session of congress.

Under the grant the Ford company is given four months in which to complete and file with the commission its plans for the project, which were shown not yet fully developed and also its plan for disposal of surplus power.

The grant of the preliminary permit was interpreted for Ford representatives as being equivalent to a permanent lease.

During the coming four months, however, it is understood, the city of Minneapolis will take steps to amend its city charter to allow the municipality to develop power and then will again petition the commission for permission to do so.

In expressing approval today of the Ford plan, representatives of the Twin cities claimed the rights to use any surplus power developed by the Ford company. Counsel for the Northern States Power company also demanded that the guarantee be directed to turn over to it the surplus power.

The Ford company, the commission was told, will erect a plant on a 167-acre tract, already purchased, for the assembly of cars and for the manufacture of parts and other articles. Representatives declared the plant would be worked on a 24-hour basis and that there would be little surplus power.

SEARCH FOR THUG WHO SHOT DRIVER

Taxi Man Is Held Up, Shot and Robbed by Stranger—Wounds May Be Fatal.

Homerville, Ga., March 2.—A young man who gave his name as Lawrence Palmer, 18 years old, of Philadelphia, Pa., was captured near here today by Deputy Sheriff S. W. Elliott, of Clinch county, and is being held in connection with the probable fatal shooting of C. K. Hawkins, taxi driver of Waycross, near here last night.

Palmer was driving a new car, said to be the missing taxi driven off after the attack on the driver, when he was arrested today.

Waycross, Ga., March 2.—(Special.)—A search extending to a number of south Georgia cities is being conducted today for a man described as wearing a blue pin stripe suit, a felt hat and a chocolate brown mustache, who last night shot and probably fatally wounded C. K. Hawkins, 26-year-old taxi driver of this city, at Risken, Ga.

Hawkins today is at the point of death. According to the victim's account of the affair, he was approached by a strange white man at about 9 o'clock last night, and hired to drive the stranger to Risken. Within a short distance of the town the man ordered him to stop the car, pointed desire a desire to remove from the scene of questionable activities, those who are supposed to possess, and may be willing to disclose, considerable information regarding the waste, extravagance and mismanagement which characterized the Forbes reign.

Among the recurring director's recommendations is one proposing to increase the salary of certain bureau physicians to $20,000 per annum. Of course, we might have expected him to recommend—or do something—to divert public attention from the proposed bureau investigation which he pretends to control, but has been so careful not to recommend.

"If, instead of wracking his mind for some unnecessary, nonsensical recommendation for bureau investigation, this discredited bureau, he had endeavored to explain to congress, and to the public, some of the apparently unwise, if not shady, and corrupt transactions of recent months, with which his name is so closely linked, he would have commanded more respect than he now enjoys."

Asserting that officials of the bureau had refused to supply him with information concerning a number of deals, and that otherwise, the Georgia representative then called upon Mr. Forbes to explain the following contracts:

"His explanation of contract awarded to the W. N. Sutherland Building and Construction company, for construction of a hospital at Tupper Lake, New York, would be of interest. If it was necessary to award the first contract of $42,000 to this party on competitive bids, he might also explain why he did not deem it necessary to require competitive bids for the additional $52,000 contract awarded this company.

"The ex-director might do well to explain the contract that was awarded to J. W. Thompson, of St. Louis, and Chicago for construction of the North Hampton hospital. Why should Mr. Thompson be awarded this contract at $142,000 if the Northeastern Construction company submitted a competitive bid offering to do the work for $27,000 less? If he should contend that the Northeastern Construction company is not reliable, he might explain how it is this same company is now doing construction work for the government at Norfolk, Va.

Wants Public to Know.

"If the war department disposing of surplus war materials received an average of 57 per cent for textiles sold, the public would certainly be glad to know why it was necessary for the veterans' bureau to sell such articles to the Thompson Kelly company for 20-14 per cent. In this connection he might also explain why he did not sell such goods—as were sold to other parties who offered 50 per cent more for them.

"If 20-14 per cent, the price at which the bureau sold surplus war material to the Thompson Kelly company, was a reasonably fair price for surplus, the ex-director might explain how it is that such staple articles as bed sheets, etc., were actually delivered over to this company for 17 per cent of the original cost or less. He might also explain how it is that practically all of said goods sold the Thompson Kelly company have been resold by the said company by auction or otherwise—at from three to five times the price paid the bureau for them. But why should we sell army surplus for the operation of hospitals in the veterans' bureau when we are forced to re-buy such articles at approximately five times the price?

"Mr. Forbes might also explain the mystery and reason which prevents officials of the veterans' bureau from advising members of congress, or the public, of the original proposition made by Thompson Kelly company to the veterans' bureau regarding sale of property at Perryville Md., about November 15 of last year.

Questions Hesitated.

"Certainly Mr. Forbes knows that a pistol at him and ordered him to get out of the car.

Obedient to the orders, he was marched some distance down the road, and despite his entreaties, two shots were fired into his body. Bending over the prostrated body of the driver, the stranger ran through several of his pockets, taking 50 cents from one of them, but overlooking a roll of bills in another pocket. A noise from one of the houses near at hand is believed to have frightened the man, who returned to the car.

Hawkins said that he was able to fit over on his side and saw the stranger start the car and drive off. For some time he lay in the road helpless, before negroes coming to investigate the shot, found him. He was brought to Waycross about midnight, where an operation was immediately performed, and the bullets removed.

The operation disclosed the fact that the intestines had been pierced ten times. Attendees at the hospital stated that Hawkins had only a fighting chance to recover.

Informing of the shooting this morning, Sheriff Sweet immediately got in touch with the police authorities of Valdosta, who stated over long distance phone that a man answering the description of the stranger had been seen driving through the city at break-neck speed only a few minutes before, headed for Quitman.

Officials of Quitman, Thomasville and other cities along possible routes that the stranger might take were notified, and are expected to keep a close watch. Sheriff Sweet stated that he is confident that a capture will be made.

Lesson Is Given To Prohi Agents By Mother Earth

Shows Dismukes' Men How Easy It Is to Cut Off Moonshine.

BY LOY WARWICK.

Old Mother Earth PRESUMABLY tired of just spinning around in space bearing an oppressive burden of restless humanity must have decided last night to mock Volsteadians and federal prohibition agents. She may have done it just to prove that it could be done and then again she may have done it because—well, maybe, she couldn't help it. But anyhow she did something that no doubt many prohibition agents have not dared dream of, namely, she absolutely cut off most of North America's "moonshine."

But being a good old earth she didn't take it all away and that part which she took was held for a short while. And then again we can't hold it against her because Georgians don't miss a little "planetary moonshine" as much as that made from corn.

But it's a safe speculation that many a supporter of Mr. Volstead despairingly tore his hair as he saw how easily Mother Earth went through the act of blocking "moonshine."

The earth passed between the moon and the sun Friday night beginning at 8:28 o'clock, effecting a partial lunar eclipse. The northwestern portion of the moon became slightly obscured, reaching its limit of immersion at 9:32 o'clock, after which it began its emission, totally emerging at 10:35 o'clock.

The lower, or southern portion of the moon remained at its usual brightness. Scientists say that a lunar eclipse affords a good proof that the earth is a sphere, because a cross section of its shadow is seen to be round when it falls upon the moon.

The partial eclipse of the moon Friday night will be only one of three eclipses this year to be visible in North America, except the total eclipse of the sun on September 10 next, which will, however, be seen only in southern California and Mexico on this continent.

members according to the original and unchanged rules of the club.

Count in Original List.

These votes will count in deciding winners of the sixteen expensive capital and district auto awards and 24 big cash prizes comprising the original list of forty great awards.

"Eight days remain for new contestants to enter their names and make good in this special extra offer," was the club management's statement Friday. "This has been done before and can be repeated by ambitious men and women who really want automobiles of their own."

"The backbone of the series of rains and cold spells, after halting operations of even the most ambitious club members for the past several weeks, now seems to be broken. Competition is speedily on every day—but it is young."

"Men and women who rush in their entry blanks without delay still have a wonderful chance to carry off the extra prizes—but quick action and constant activity is necessary. Don't delay longer—clip out your entry blank appearing in this issue and mail it in. Then get busy and stay busy."

The club management Friday took occasion to congratulate old club members upon the promptness with which they returned to securing subscriptions as soon as good weather made its appearance.

Old Members Warned.

"Don't let new club members come in and take the special prizes without a strenuous effort," was the club management's warning. "Keep up the excellent work you have done up to date in the campaign, and make up your mind to win two beautiful automobile prizes."

Addition of the two special prizes, it was explained, now makes it possible for a club member to win one of them and one of the eight capital or one of the eight district automobiles.

"Determination counts everything in this race," was the declaration of club officials, "so make up your mind to get everything possible out of the campaign."

PROPOSED RATES TO CUT REVENUE

the shippers that their proposal would result in reducing revenue accruing from inter-state traffic, it is understood that the shippers will contend that this deficit will be made up by increased revenue from higher rates proposed on intra-state traffic.

The shippers are contending for the mileage basis, to eliminate rates made under conditions which are said to exist no longer, and at the same time give the carriers a total revenue as great as now received. Low rates designed to meet interstate competition in points where no water competition exists and low intra-state, short haul, rates to meet other forms of competition in traffic of this kind, are the rates which the shippers seek to revise.

The hearing will continue Saturday, with Mr. Tilford again on the stand.

Millions Face Starvation As Russia Exports Grain

Eight million Russians will starve to death before August if not fed by Russian or foreign relief. This is the figure set by the Commission on Russian Relief, consisting of Allen Wardwell, Graham R. Taylor, and Allen T. Burns. They have recently returned from a five months' trip in Russia, and their summary report, issued by the National Information Bureau, Inc., is just out. In the face of this comes the astounding news that Russia is exporting grain.

According to the Russian Special Correspondent of the New York Times, Walter Duranty, Russia is preparing to export up to 10,000,000 bushels. Arthur S. Draper, in a London cable to the New York Tribune, is authority for another report that the Bolsheviks delivered about 250 carloads of rye to the Finnish Government and received payment in dollars at the prevailing American rate for grain. According to the report of the Commission on Russian Relief: "The position of the Soviet Government regarding exports is that they are imperatively necessary to break the vicious circle already referred to—underproduction because of the lack of horses and plows, new shortages, famine, further killing and eating of horses, continued underproduction. Quite frankly the authorities state that even at the cost of many deaths from starvation this year, exporting grain is the only way to secure the work animals and implements needed to prevent many more deaths in the future."

There is an illuminating article in THE LITERARY DIGEST, this week bearing upon the starvation menace which faces Russia in the immediate future. It is illustrated with two maps showing the sections where famine existed last year and the sections where American Relief operates.

INCOME OF STATE RAISED $300,000

Increase in Treasury Funds to Come as Result of Decision Upholding Occupational Tax.

As a result of a decision of the supreme court on Friday, the state's income from taxation will be increased about $300,000, according to an estimate made by Comptroller General William A. Wright.

The decision upheld the constitutionality of the state occupation tax on cigar dealers, and inasmuch as the same point of law is concerned in other lines of business, the ruling will likewise apply to automobile garages, jitney buses, and rent cars, dealers in coal, coke and wood, laundries, cafes and restaurants and undertakers.

Payment Held Up. Payment of these occupation taxes was held up in 1922 by injunction and attorneys for all the lines of business concerned agreed to be governed by the decision in the cigar dealers' case, as the constitutional question at issue was the same in all cases.

The occupation tax act, which was passed in 1921 to take effect in 1922, imposed a graduated tax on the business, graduated according to the size of the town in which they were located. On cigar dealers the tax ranged from $5 a year in towns of between 2,000 and 5,000, up to $75 a year in towns of 50,000 and over.

The act was claimed to be unconstitutional and discriminatory in that it exempted dealers outside of incorporated towns and also that it worked unfairly as between large dealers in small towns and small dealers in large towns.

It was also claimed that in some cases it would be confiscatory, as some cigar dealers in large cities did not possess a stock valued at more than $75, the amount of the tax, and that many of them did not exceed this amount in net profit. Likewise it was claimed that it worked to the advantage of chain stores, as compared to single stores.

Upholds Legislature. The supreme court in its decision, written by Justice Hines, held that the real point at issue was whether the legislature could divide cigar dealers into two classes, a city class and a country class, taxing one and exempting the other. On this point he said that the legislature merely used part of its taxing power.

The decision held further that it was entirely reasonable to make a difference between city and country cigar dealers because there is actually a substantial difference between the cigar business in the country and the cigar business in the city. Because some dealers, by reason of their financial weakness, could not pay the tax, does not make it confiscatory in its general application, it was decided.

ATLANTA TEACHERS RECEIVE SALARIES

A check for $144,000 to pay teachers of the local public schools during the month of February was signed Friday by Mayor Walter A. Sims.

Owing to illness Thursday of Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, the teachers' payroll was held over from March 1.

RULING ON LIMIT OF TAX LEVY MADE BY GEORGE NAPIER

In answer to inquiries recently received by the state board of education from county boards as to whether the latter can legally authorize a tax levy of more than five mills in order to get additional funds for the salary of a county agent and teacher of home economics, the state board on Friday sent out copies of an opinion on this point given by Attorney-General George M. Napier.

In his opinion, Mr. Napier rules that five mills in the constitutional limit for the county board of education for the county system. This opinion, of course, does not refer to the school district tax which can be levied in addition to the county tax.

The opinion of Mr. Napier, in full, is as follows:

Replying to your inquiry whether a county board of education may legally levy a tax of seven mills for the purpose of paying salaries of county demonstration agents and teachers of home economics, and to which you attach a letter on that subject from Judge E. H. Calloway to yourself:

The supreme court has held that the legislature may confer authority upon county boards of education to employ and pay the salaries of demonstration agents and teachers of home economics, but in a recent decision, has expressly held that a tax levied to meet the salaries and expenses of such persons, together with other educational purposes, cannot exceed five (5) mills.

This decision, therefore, settles that question. The limit to the taxation for educational purposes is constitutional and absolutely restricts it to five mills; and a county board of education no matter what the exigencies, may not exceed that limit, under our present laws.

It is only an incidental observation, but I am constrained to say that the strenuous and very urgent needs of children in our rural communities for rudimentary education seem, under the law, to demand a solution of the lack of funds raised for education, so that these wards of the state may not have the door of opportunity closed in their faces.

BANNING OF LASH
HERE COMMENDED
BY E. E. DUDDING

Governor Hardwick Friday received a letter from E. E. Dudding, president of the Prisoners' Relief society, of Washington, D. C., commending him for his recent action in banning the use of the lash as punishment for convicts in Georgia prison camps.

In his letter President Dudding said: "Now, for myself, our board of directors of our society, the poor convicts and the good people of the country, I thank you. When you shall have been laid to your final rest it will be rightfully said: 'Hardwick found men in suffering, in thralldom and despair; he opened their cell of gloom, kindled therein the torch of hope, and sent them back into the world believing that we have a god.' The convicts of Georgia can start life anew and they will say: 'Hardwick was kind to everyone, good to the home. He spent his time largely in helping others and guiding them aright as best he could.'"

"Governor, when God makes up his jewels from mountains and plains, from mines and seas, there will be none brighter than Thomas Hardwick of Georgia."

TRUSTEES ADOPT MERCER BUDGET

Joint Committee Is Authorized to Work Out Final Plans for Merger With Bessie Tift College

Macon, Ga., March 2.—(Special.) The Mercer board of trustees at its meeting here today adopted the budget for this college year, providing for the expenditure of $125,000 for instruction, construction and current expenses.

An athletic director to succeed Josh Cody, who leaves in June to become assistant full time coach of Vanderbilt university, was left in the hands of a committee composed of Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, president of Mercer, and Dr. W. G. Lee.

Late tonight the board of trustees approved a recommendation that $25,000 be given toward a fund for the erection of a $100,000 stadium, conditional on a gift of $50,000 by the people of Macon. This has already been promised by Macon people.

Preceding the meeting of the Mercer board of trustees, the Bessie Tift board held its meeting, at which the faculty was chosen for the ensuing year. Dr. Aquila Chamlee was re-elected president of Bessie Tift college. Members of the faculty will be announced later, it was stated.

Five professors, heads of departments at Mercer university, are to teach three days a week at Bessie Tift college under the proposed merger arrangement that was reached at a joint meeting of both boards.

The boards authorized a joint committee to work out the final plans for the merger of Mercer and Bessie Tift, and Doctor Weaver said it is highly probable that the plan will go through before the close of the year. Apparently he anticipates that the Southern Baptist convention will approve of the plan.

Members of the joint committee are Judge W. H. Davis, of Waynesboro, Ga.; Warren Grice, of Macon; Hulet A. Hall, of Newnan; Mrs. John S. Spaulding, of Atlanta; Samuel Rutherford, of Forsyth; Dr. Aquila Chamlee, of Bessie Tift college, and Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, of Mercer.

The enrollment of Mercer university for the college year is 806, 200 more students than were in the college last year, according to the report of Dr. Weaver.

The trustees of Mercer university elected T. J. Hamilton, editor of The Augusta Chronicle, as a new member of the board.

SAVINI TO LEAVE TODAY TO IDENTIFY LOCAL PROMOTER

R. M. Savini, local motion picture distributor, will leave for New York city Saturday to identify James Carlton Lee, former president of the "Black and White Taxicab company," who was arrested in that city Wednesday, after forfeiting a $5,000 bond on which Mr. Savini was an endorser when he failed to appear in Fulton superior court to answer charges of larceny after trust.

Lee was indicted here after stockholders in the taxicab company, of which Lee was the promoter, complained to the solicitor's office that he had deposited proceeds from the sale of stock in a local bank and later withdrawn the money for his own personal use.

Dispatches Friday from New York referred to the prisoner as James H. Bowen. It was stated at the solicitor's office that he is not known here by that name.

It was also reported in New York that the attorney for Lee, or Bowen, claims that Lee's life would be in peril from the Ku Klux Klan were he to be returned here. Attaches of Solicitor Boykin's office stated that there was no basis for such a claim and that it had been made in the hope of preventing extradition to Georgia.

Fred E. Savage, imperial kliff of the Ku Klux Klan, stated Friday night that he had no knowledge of such a horsewhipping and that there were no reports of such an occurrence at imperial headquarters. No complaint had been registered, he stated.

Fears Klan, Claims Lee.

New York, March 2.—Fearing he will be slain by the Ku Klux Klan if he returned to Georgia to face a charge of larceny, J. Carlton Lee, alias James H. Bowen, former president of the Black and White Taxicab company, of Atlanta, has appealed to Governor Smith to deny an application for his extradition. John B. Golden, Brown's counsel, announced today.

Bowen, Mr. Golden declared, was horsewhipped by klanmen just outside of Atlanta last January, and had been warned not to return to the state. The whipping followed remarks Bowen made about the Klan, he said.

Bowen was arrested recently as a fugitive from justice at request of Atlanta authorities, who said he was under indictment there for alleged theft of notes from the taxicab company. Hearing on his extradition has been set for Tuesday.

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED FOR WEEK OF PRAYER

Ponce de Leon Baptist church women have arranged a program of services to be conducted during a season of prayer and self-denial in the interest of home missions. It was announced Friday.

The first service will be held March 5 at 11 o'clock, with Mrs. M. A. Sandifer, chairman. Circle No. 5, in charge. Among the speakers for the opening session will be Mrs. R. L. Turman, Mrs. Bolling Jones, Jacob Gartenhaus, and Mrs. C. M. Stodghill.

A home mission symposium will be held at the luncheon period from 1:30 to 2:30 o'clock, and a number of distinguished visitors will be present. Among the speakers will be Mrs. B. D. Gray, Mrs. B. C. Henning, Mrs. Austin Crouch, Mrs. W. A. Hartman.

The afternoon session will begin at 3 o'clock, with Mrs. S. B. Naff presiding. Miss Lovelace, president Elizabeth Mather college, will deliver the principal address upon the subject, "Our Responsibility to Give Christ the Southland."

NEGROES TO FIGHT RETURN TO FLORIDA

Asking that he be notified of any effort to obtain extradition papers for three negroes who are charged with failure to work after funds had already been advanced to them, R. L. Tipton, judge of the city court of Ashburn, Ga., stated in a letter to Governor Hardwick that any effort to return the negroes to Florida, where they are alleged to have committed the offense, will be contested.

The three men, John Jones, Sam King and Otis Obey, it is said, have been carried to Florida by a man who engaged them to cut cross-ties, leaving their families at Ashburn. Their employer, whose name is said to be Mitchell, claims, according to the letter, that he advanced the men money amounting to between $12 and $20 each.

The men tired of their work in Florida and returned to Ashburn, Judge Tipton says, after which they were placed under arrest. A local man is reported to have paid the amounts which they were alleged to have been advanced, later learning that there was a cost bill attached amounting to more than $100. This amount they refuse to pay and it is stated that the men will resist any effort to extradite them to Florida.

DOUGLAS COUNTY LAUNCHES MOVE TO AID FARMERS

Douglasville, Ga., March 2.—(Special.)—At the close of a most enthusiastic meeting tonight, Douglas county launched what promises to be the greatest campaign in its history or advancing the agricultural interests of the county.

George T. Betts, of Ashburn, president of the Georgia association; F. H. Abbot, secretary of the same; B. S. Barker, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and G. W. Humphrey, dairy specialist, of the Southern railway, addressed a meeting of the Men's Progressive Club in the interest of the cow, hog and hen program on every farm. The speakers were enthusiastically received and money raised at once for membership in the Georgia association.

A number of business men and farmers will at an early date visit Turner county to get first-hand information about putting over the Turner county plan in Douglas. County Agent Turk also is organizing poultry clubs in every school in the county and everything points toward progress here.

German Brides at Screven

FIRST VIEWS OF LIFE IN GERMAN-AMERICAN HOMES Busy Learning New Customs

BY D. G. BICKERS.

Fort Screven, Ga., March 3.—They haven't yet seen much of America, the eight German brides of American soldiers who form a unique little group of the new life of old Fort Screven, on Tybee island.

They were in America before they knew it—for it was daytime when they arrived and Tybee light was not even visible at a distance, on account of the fog of the morning of February 7. But they must have thought that there were plenty of people and that there was much noise when they slowly progressed on the St. Mihil up the Savannah river through such a welcome as probably staggered them to consistently harmonize with the relations between their "Faderland" and this America a few short years ago.

They saw the river and the harbor of Savannah. They saw something of the historic oldest city of Georgia; they caught many gleams and glimpses of the new country—as in a dream flitting by as they awoke from a long sea-sick travel across the ocean.

Draw Contracts.

But when they settled down in the

into cozy and comfortable homes—and in one or another of these homes, furnished with new furniture and already adorned by touches of deliciously original art, these eight brides gather and chat and comment on the new country and its quirks and its differences from the old country.

Newspapers Surprise.

One declares that the newspapers of this country are the inexplicable surprise of the new world. She has learned English—this most expressive little woman from Coblenz—and she finds the time every day to improve her use of the language by religiously digging through the papers—the first page coming first and making the most surprising impression.

"I cannot understand why you do not in your newspapers leave out most of the stories which you seem to emphasize most prominently in headlines and length of handling. Tragedies, murders, the troubles people get into, domestic tangles and marriage separations, divorces and accidents and misery and suffering and killings and—"

"In my old land the papers do not print the unpleasant things, the gruesome things, the ghastly and ghostly and the mysterious things; they find enough good things, pleasant things, helpful, cheerful things to crowd out so much blood and clouds and weeping. For why is American newspapers that way?"

Nor could the newspaper men say why—because she is not yet acquainted with the strange mind of the millions of readers of American newspapers which print what people will pay for to read.

Several of them admitted that the first days at Screven were fearful days, days of sighing and strange fears and other ailments than nostalgia. They were troubled by cockroaches—their tiny German homes had none of such horrid things; they were frightened by the mice and by an occasional enormous rat—for they had not become accustomed to them in the old land; they were puzzled by the shrubby woods growing on the land and in the sand everywhere.

Make "Love Nests."

But they soon became busy making nests for their husbands—for these brides having proved their devotion to their doughty husbands by marrying them and coming over with them have found a continuation of content in home making.

And wherever they touch there is the evidence of the homemaker. They are economical and good traders—good savers, and careful spenders. The appalling surprise over which she has not yet recovered was told by a third little woman—barely more than a girl—who declared that "where there's a will there's a way," to save in spite of the monumentally tremendous price of things on this side.

Where a kitchen utensil in Germany had cost less than 25 cents; it costs in the Savannah five and ten cent store more than a dollar; a piece of furniture costs here—and the prices are low as in other cities—eighteen dollars, she could have bought in Coblenz for a dollar and a half.

"It is a changing of all the arithmetic they have learned in the school," she said. She sighed but presently her face lighted, and she said—"But we will have a home, we will be happy, and we will save some money; yes, we will really save quite a lot of money."

These brides have their hearts centered on their little cottage homes at the fort—even if, as they admit with wistful looks, their minds are in their homelands now and then. They are making homes of the fort houses; they have cleared out the last traces of dust and dirt; they have conquered the roaches and the ants; they have tidied up things generally.

Shun Society Events.

They do not visit Savannah often, they do not care for the shopping except when they must shop and then they regret they have to buy—at American prices. They eschew the movies and the theaters and shun the society events—save for the informal affairs of the army life at the fort itself.

But they do visit each other. Any cottage is apt to have a majority or at least a quorum of the double quartet any time after the dusk, swiftly done morning duties in the respective cottages are done—sitting and chatting and laughing; are, verily, merrily laughing.

They think of Germany, oh, yes. They do not dream much of a further excursion into America—oh, no. They are too busy just being their husbands' wives and making homes for them to think of the future.

One of them has been reading and hearing read and talked American history. She learned today that the Eighth infantry in which her husband is a sergeant, has existed for many decades. While the personnel has changed, it is the same old Eighth which had part in the Spanish-American war at Santiago; the same that took part in the civil war on the federal side.

It is quick they get the "north" and "south" differentiations—these keen little foreign-born women. One of them heard today that the Confederate army on one occasion captured the whole of the old union "Eighth regiment" except one man, who escaped wrapped in a flag and now she hears that the new Eighth is captured again by the south for most of the regiment is at Fort Screven, Savannah, and at the fort at Charleston.

With delightful tact she declares she hopes that the "Eighth regiment" will get the habit fixed of being captured by southern forces.

More than 1,000,000 years would be required for all the water of the earth's seas to pour over the falls of Niagara, according to one statistician.

Charlie and Pola Decide to Wed Despite 'Poverty'

Film Actress Declares She Was Miled on Subject of Chaplin's Income.

Los Angeles, Cal., March 2.—(By the Associated Press.)—Cupid was king again in Hollywood today and romance lived anew for Pola Negri, Polish tragedienne of the silver screen, and Charlie Chaplin, screenland's most famous comedian.

Their troth plighted over again after a six-hour desolate break, Miss Negri was "too happy to sleep" when she re-announced it in the small hours of today and Mr. Chaplin was the typical "happiest man in the world" when he entered his limousine after a conference of reconciliation in which the new queen of make-believe said he would live without her.

Mr. Chaplin also denied to her that he had told a newspaper he was "too poor to marry just now; this is a workaday world and we've all got to stay busy, and keep away from the climaxes of sentiment."

It was that which precipitated the breaking of the engagement.

Miss Negri read the so-called statement. Without reference to Mr. Chaplin, the agreement to wed was terminated abruptly.

Not Glycerine Tears.

A typewritten statement said the newest star in America's movie capital considered herself "too poor" to marry Charlie Chaplin, "he needs a wealthy woman." Tears, her own, not the applied glycerine of the profession, rolled down Miss Negri's cheeks, as the neatly typed statement was handed newspaper men.

It was these newspaper men who informed Mr. Chaplin first of the dashing of his hopes.

Over the telephone they told him, "Oh" and "Is that so?" and abruptly the receiver in the Chaplin home clicked to its resting place. Even his best friends were barred from his doors.

Speculation was rife. Scores of reasons were advanced. There was talk of a rival, a Polish painter who was coming to California to build a home, and for whom?

The lips of the little tragedienne trembled and her eyes filled with tears as she added to the typed statement: "There were a thousand things. It is another experience. I have learned. Now I will live only for my work. All the rest, the happy days, are dead to me. It is all over."

Charlie for the time was lost sight of. It was believed he was in retirement in his home, thinking.

Charlie Hikes Out.

While the early night editions of morning papers in Hollywood movie district heralded, in the selling talk of news boys that "Pola's given Charlie the air," Chaplin made his way to Miss Negri's retreat.

Just what happened there probably never will be given to the world in detail. But after midnight Chaplin went home, with a smile on his face and Miss Negri, her finger again weighted with the platinum engagement ring she had removed a few hours previously, was contemplating her joy, "too happy to sleep," she said.

Miss Negri frankly admitted her happiness in "making up" after Chaplin had declared he never had made the "too poor to get married" statement. "Mr. Chaplin came to see me early and he stayed late," said Miss Negri. "I have taken him back and we are quite reconciled and engaged again. He swore to me he never had said he was too poor to marry me. He told me he loved me and could not live without me. And so, of course, I believed him and have taken him back."

HIGHWAY REPORT SHOWS ECONOMY

Less Than Six Cents of Every Dollar Spent for Engineering, Supervision and Maintenance.

Less than six cents out of every dollar spent by the state highway department for road construction goes for engineering, supervision and maintenance, according to the report of the department, detailing the expenditure of the $10,000,000 used in the construction of the first 96 road and bridge projects that have been completed in the state.

The 96 projects which have been completed represent a total of 353 miles of highway and 25,679 linear feet of bridges, according to the report. The contracts for this work were awarded during the period of high prices, during the 1919-1920 period.

W. R. Neal, engineer of the department, stated:

The greater part of the bridges are of concrete and steel, it is stated, and if placed end to end they would stretch over nearly five miles of water.

The 353 miles of highway consists of 336.8 miles of top-surfaced or sand clay surfaced roadway; 118 miles of road-way surfaced with brick, asphalt or concrete; 44 miles of macadam, gravel or chert surfaced roadway; and 15.7 miles of road for which no surfacing materials have yet been provided.

Of the total amount expended, 2.36 cents out of every dollar went for administration and 3.58 cents for engineering and supervision, bringing the total to less than six cents.

It is stated that before the state highway department was authorized to furnish engineers to the counties to survey the different highway projects, the engineering and supervision cost of the roads to the counties employing private engineers was in the neighborhood of seven and a half cents for every dollar expended in construction, or more than double the amount now being spent by the state for this service.

The road construction dollar, 35 cents of which was furnished by the federal government, according to the report, was divided as follows: 19.25 cents for grading; 5.22 cents for small drainage; 26.42 cents for bridges; 6.16 cents for temporary surfacing; 4.46 cents for durable surfacing; 22.12 cents for permanent surfacing; 2.36 cents for engineering and supervision; 3.58 cents for administration.

The total construction cost of the 96 projects which have been completed is given by the report as $10,000,000, $3,521,175.26 of which was supplied by the federal government.

This expenditure is divided as follows: 19.25 cents for grading; 5.22 cents for small drainage; 26.42 cents for bridges; 6.16 cents for temporary surfacing; 4.46 cents for durable surfacing; 22.12 cents for permanent surfacing; 2.36 cents for engineering and supervision; 3.58 cents for administration.

The total mileage that has been completed is 353 miles, including the length of the bridge projects, according to the report.

The cost of a mile of highway with a temporary surface is shown by the report to be $17,451.87. For a durable surfaced road, of which there are more than 44 miles in the state recently completed by the department, the cost is given as $10,217.90 a mile.

For a permanent hard-surfaced road of concrete, brick or asphalt with all of the trimmings, the highway department pays $27,447.47.

ROUNTREE ARRIVES TO PERFECT PLANS FOR ROAD MEETING

J. A. Rountree, director-general of the Bankhead national highway, is in Atlanta for a conference with local officials of the highway, perfecting plans for the national convention of the Bankhead highway commission, which will be held in Greenville, S. C., Thursday and Friday, April 19 and 20, immediately following the close of the national convention of the United States good roads association which meets there.

Mrs. Albert E. Thornton, chairman of the woman's commission, Bankhead national highway, and vice-president of the United States good roads association, gave a dinner Friday night at the Hotel Ponce de Leon in honor of Mr. Rountree. A number of other members of the commission were present.

Mrs. R. K. Rambo, chairman for Georgia of the woman's commission, and Mrs. Thornton will attend the convention in Greenville.

Savannah Police Receive New Supply Of Mob-Preventive

Savannah, Ga., March 2.—(Special.)—Savannah's police department has just received $1,000 worth of mob-preventive, in the form of ten special type police masks and two hundred tear gas bombs. It is supposed to employ these modern methods in case there should be rioting at any time.

It is said that while officers of the department will be given explicit directions verbally as to how the new lawlessness-fighting apparatus is to be used, there positively will not be any actual trial demonstrations for practice.

TRUCK CROPS INJURED BY COLD WEATHER

Truck crops and winter gardens were "severely injured" by the recent freeze, but grain crops were practically uninjured, according to reports of the southeastern statisticians of the bureau of agricultural economics compiled by Z. R. Pettet, statistician at the Atlanta office.

Corn planting is in progress in Florida and cotton planting will begin in a few days, reports show. Extra early truck crops throughout the southeast were injured by the cold and early potatoes were reported cut back to the ground, with the probable result of a decrease in yield. Some damage was reported to peaches and strawberries, but there was no damage to citrus fruits in Florida, according to the resume.

Complaints of the movement of farm labor to industrial centers featured each report, it was stated.

'Uncle Joe' Should Worry About Leaving Congress

Washington, March 2.—Good, hard common sense and clear judgment are the most valuable assets for the young man yearning for a political career.

"Uncle" Joe Cannon told the youth of the country in an exclusive and farweld interview with the United News.

On next Sunday at noon the political career of Joseph Gurney Cannon, the most colorful figure in congress, will end. Just a half century ago, as a man of 37 years, he came to serve his first term.

"Uncle" Joe is no "flame-duck." He voluntarily withdrew from the last elections. "What can I say to the young men?" he repeated the question slowly. In his slow, almost feeble voice, "What is necessary for a successful political career? Why common sense. Good, hard common sense. But that is necessary for success in any line, I guess, any profession, and industry."

"The big majority of those young men who seek political careers fail. Only a small minority stick it out. I guess that is because the same industry applied to any other profession or any business will bring much greater rewards."

"And then, too, the young man must have ambition. Lots of it. It must be greater than any other emotion, probably."

"Glamour To It."

"If a young man is cut out for politics, likes it, and wants it, I certainly will recommend him to take it up. It would do little good to recommend otherwise. He would anyway. And then, too, there is a glamour about it."

He stopped as a smile played about the features of his thin face as though he recalled those days as speaker of the house of representatives, he ruled as a virtual dictator of the government. No bill was passed during those days without "Uncle" Joe's consent. Under the rules of the house at that time, he was the master. They called him "the great old man."

"It does not seem as though people today are as anxious to take up politics as they used to be," he went on.

COMPULSORY SCHOOL LAW RULING IS MADE

Training Runs From Beginning of Eighth Year to End of Thirteenth.

According to an opinion rendered by Attorney General George M. Naper Friday, the period for compulsory education of children, under the laws of Georgia, is one of six years, running from the beginning of the child's eighth year and ending with the completion of the thirteenth year.

This opinion was rendered in response to request of State Superintendent of Schools Dr. M. M. Parks, following revision of the law by Professor Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta schools.

In giving his opinion, Mr. Naper quotes the statute applying as follows: "Every parent, guardian or other person having charge and control of a child between the ages of 8 and 14 years, who is not exempted or excused, as hereinafter provided, shall cause said child to be enrolled in and to attend continuously for six months of each year a public school of the district or city or town in which the child resides."

Mr. Naper cites the fact that the law recognizes that majority is reached on the day before the twentieth birthday, whereas a young man, he says, is certainly not 21 until the close of the last day of his twentieth year.

Further, the opinion cites a decision of the supreme court of Michigan in the construction of the force and effect of language similar to that under review.

He concludes his opinion with the words: "In view of the reasons set forth, it is my opinion that compulsory education for children in this state does not include the fourteenth year; but is limited to the period of time beginning with the child's eighth year and ending with the completion of the thirteenth, making a period of six years."

GASOLINE IGNITES STORE AT WALESKA

Waleska, Ga., March 2.—(Special.) The grocery store of Rich Cook went up in flames last night about 8 o'clock. The building and entire stock of goods was destroyed. It is said that no insurance was carried on either building or stock.

Mr. Cook was driving gasoline, it was stated, by the light of a lantern. Just before completing the task the vapor from the gas became ignited, giving Mr. Cook scarcely time to escape before the entire building was aflame. All efforts to extinguish the fire seemed to make it burn more furiously.

This is the second store lost by fire recently in Waleska. The first, one belonged to T. W. Fowler and was fired by lightning.

NO MEN INJURED BY AUTOMOBILES

J. H. Woodley and M. S. Tesler Are Victims. Sam Richardson, Georgia Athlete, Is Injured.

J. H. Woodley, 55, of 68 East Fair street, and M. S. Tesler, 55, of 508 Washington street, were seriously injured in automobile accidents Friday.

Woodley was hurt at East Fair street and South Boulevard Friday morning when knocked down by an automobile driven by Z. V. Rainey, of 310 South Boulevard.

Tesler was injured when an automobile, driven by an unidentified woman, struck him at Washington and Ormand streets Friday afternoon. The woman did not stop her car, police were told.

Both were carried to the Grady hospital for treatment. Tesler received an ugly wound on the head, over the left ear, in addition to bruises about the body. Woodley was badly bruised and probably had two ribs broken.

Detective Captain T. O. Sturdivant was riding in his auto behind the Rainey car when he saw it turn right and the injured man in his car to be taken to the hospital. Both declared the accident unavoidable.

Call Officers John Chenshaw and Henry Dunahoo, who were dispatched to investigate the injury of Tesler, were furnished the license number of the machine the woman was driving. The woman was driving a 1922 Ford, was issued to the Cooper-Brace Grocery company, of Thompkins, Ga.

Sam Richardson, well-known University of Georgia athlete, was carried to the Davis-Fischer hospital Friday suffering from injuries received when his motorcycle collided with an automobile at Spring street and North avenue.

The automobile that injured Richardson belonged to A. E. Liebman, was driven by his negro chauffeur, Arthur Walter. The negro stopped immediately after striking Richardson, picked him up and took him to the hospital. Surgeons stated he was not dangerously hurt.

Opposition to Federal Control of Education Growing, Says Parks

Dr. M. M. Parks, state school superintendent, has returned from the meeting of the National Education association, at Cleveland, Ohio. There were 10,000 educators present, representing the 700,000 and 21,000,000 school children in the United States.

"It was a great meeting," said Dr. Parks. "It was gratifying to note the growing opposition to the idea of federal control of education. Several years ago, I was alarmed at some of the tendencies toward a federalizing, centralizing, bureaucratic control of education from Washington. But the tide has turned against such unconstitutional, undemocratic and unwise interference with state rights and local self-government. In this country we do not wish a bureaucratic control of education, since we have centuries of education and governmental gold can be just as dangerous, if not more dangerous, in destroying local independence than militaristic forces. To exchange local control in education for subsidies of gold is like selling one's birthright for a 'mess of pottage.'"

Georgia was represented at the Cleveland educational meeting by more than a score of educators, including Superintendent Leston B. Evans, of Augusta; H. B. Daniel, of Columbus; C. B. Gibson, of Savannah; W. P. Martin, of Dublin; Superintendent M. O. McCord, of Washington, Ga.; Superintendent G. C. Boyd, of Athens; Dr. J. S. Stewart, of the University of Georgia; Professor J. H. Walker, of the Monroe Agricultural school; County Superintendent S. B. Savage, of Wilkes county; Superintendent L. M. Lester, of Fayette county, with about a dozen representatives from Atlanta, including Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the Georgia School of Technology; Professor H. Reid Hunter, and a delegation from the Atlanta City schools.

$10,000 TO COMPLETE CYCLOPEDIA IS ASKED

Request of the city department of parks for an appropriation of $10,000 with which to complete the cyclopaedia building at Grant park, which $135,000 already has been expended, was taken under advisement Friday by the public works committee of the board of county commissioners.

The request was presented by General Manager L. L. Wallis of the city park department, and was signed by the members of the committee on parks.

It is understood that the petition will come up for action when the board holds its March meeting next Wednesday. A compromise with the city on the amount is favored by several members of the committee. It was stated, "Willingness to give $5,000 provided the city would match the sum and see that the building is completed is said to have been expressed by commissioners."

Miscellaneous improvements in the city's various parks, including the laying of additional concrete drive-ways and paths, to the extent of upwards of $15,000 will be undertaken by the county at the request of Superintendent Wallis.

Senate Approves Bill Modifying War Risk Act

Washington, March 2.—The Senate bill modifying the war risk insurance act in the interest of disabled veterans was passed today by the house. It now goes to the senate.

The bill would extend the time for obtaining a certificate of disability to March 1, 1924, in compensation cases, and would provide that such certificates should issue where there was an official record of injury during service or at the time of discharge, or where satisfactory evidence was furnished the bureau to establish the injury.

Veterans suffering from a neuropsychiatric or tubercular disease developed within three years after separation from the service would be considered as having acquired such disease while in the service. The present law limits the period to two years.

Veterans guilty of treason, mutiny, spying or any offense involving moral turpitude or willful and persistent misconduct would not be deprived of insurance and compensation benefits, unless they had been found guilty by a court-martial.

Where veterans of any war died after separation from the service and did not leave sufficient assets to meet the expenses of his burial, the government would provide a sum not exceeding $100. Should death occur while veteran was receiving government medical or hospital treatment or vocational training the veterans' bureau would pay in addition to his burial expenses the actual necessary cost of transporting the body to the place of burial.

LIQUOR AND AUTO ARE CONFISCATED; DRIVER ESCAPES

A touring car, containing 50 gallons of corn whiskey, was confiscated by County Policeman Jack Carroll Friday morning. The driver of the machine escaped, after leading the officer a lively chase in his auto, and then on foot.

After he abandoned the car and started across the field, Officer Carroll pursued but had to stop when he fell into a hole and sprained his knee.

Former Topeka Chief Jailed for Contempt In Suit Against Klan

Topeka, Kans., March 2.—Guy A. Swallow, former chief of police of Topeka, was placed in the jail here late today on a contempt warrant issued by the supreme court. Swallow was held in contempt of the supreme court in his refusal to take the oath as a witness when placed on the stand today at the hearing of the state's ouster suit against the Ku Klux Klan.

Swallow is the second alleged klanman jailed.

H. H. Kitchen, klan organizer, formerly of Oklahoma City, was incarcerated Thursday on a similar charge. The hearing was adjourned today.

The case of Swallow differs from that of Kitchen in that the latter took the witness oath, admitted he was an organizer and member of the klan, but refused to answer questions which he said conflicted with his oath of secrecy as a klanman. Kitchen's attorneys have indicated habeas corpus proceedings will be instituted in his behalf, pending appeal to the United States supreme court on a writ of error from the Kansas supreme court.

Swallow's refusal surprised the klan's attorney, M. L. Wood.

Boys' High Five Wins From University in Fast Game

Bluebirds Ousted From First Place in Prep League—Tech High Wins From Decatur.

BY ROY E. WHITE.

Boys' High broke the tie in the prep basketball league Friday afternoon by defeating the University team on the Auditorium court which place was held by Tech High for first place. The score of the game was 32 to 24 and was never in doubt after the first few minutes of play.

Other results of Friday were, Tech High beat Decatur 35-20; G. M. A. beat Fulton 33 to 7, and Marist handily beating Commercial, 31 to 25, in a close game.

Captain Stephens was again the star of the game with 18 points to his credit and his long distance scoring Friday was much better than at any time this season. He rang a total of six field goals and converted six free field points out of 12 attempts.

Boys' High displayed one of the best passing games yet seen on local prep courts and University never came within three points of the score until the latter part of the last half. The Purple and White team completely outplayed University in every part of the game. The score at the end of the first half was 14 to 9 with Boys' High leading.

University jumped into the lead early in the game when Angelo scored a foul shot and Freeman followed with a field goal. Soon after Boys' High began scoring and University never really threatened.

The playing of the University team was good but many shots were missed. Angelo was missing every time he attempted and in fact none of the team could hit the rim. Enough shots were missed under the basket to decide the score. University tried many long shots and therein lies the story of the defeat.

University was off in the foul shooting. Angelo missed only one of six tries. Freeman missed one chance. Nunnally missed three chances and Broadnax rang one out of three.

The defeat of University left the top place in the standing all in Tech High's favor temporarily.

The Lineups.
Boys' High: (21) Nunnally (24) Rankin (6) ...
University: (21) Angelo (24) Freeman (18) ...

Marist Is Winner.
Marist college had a hard game from Commercial High, 31 to 25. The game was featured by net passing on the part of both teams, especially Marista in the first half. When the half was over Marist was on the long end of a 16 to 8 score.

Two more days now and Jack Corbett, Dan Michalove and Doc Auten will once more start perusing sport pages.

Two more days now and Jack Corbett, Dan Michalove and Doc Auten will once more start perusing sport pages. This business of basketball is all right, they argue, for people who care for the pastime, but they'll take theirs in straight doses of baseball, if you please. They are so hardened to the game that they'll read and actually enjoy yarns about what some big league baseball club is doing at the spring camp. They also believe much of the dope they see.

Anyway, within the next two days a southern basketball champion will be selected; Al Doonan and his committee will count all the money taken in during the grand slam and Atlanta's three incurable baseball followers will turn to the sport pages, for there will then be plenty of room to devote to the recruits that are about to blaze across the horizon, only to later sink into some small league for "further seasoning," which is the polite term used in getting rid of surplus diamond talent.

"Any New Players?"
Asked Doc Auten.
The trio attended the Georgia-Tech classic Thursday night. The conductor of this column, "passing in review" between halves, spotted Doc Auten near the main entrance. In the first place Doc looked crowded and thoroughly uncomfortable, to say nothing of feeling out of place. He came down suspecting that his professional services would be needed. He had attended Bulldog-Jacket athletic controversies of years ago and didn't think things had changed much.

"Great game, ain't it, Doc?" we asked pleasantly.
"Sure is," responded the doctor. "What's the score and who is leading?"
"Lotta fuss being made, don't you think?" was our next query.
"Baby," was Dr. Auten's reply. "Reminds me of the noise out at Poncey last year when Joe Guyon slammed the ball over the signboards in right field. Jack Corbett announced any new ball players today?"

The interview from that time was about baseball. We wanted to talk about the battle that was being staged before our eyes, but Doc wouldn't be led into strange pastures. His mind was on the Cracker.

Wanted to Know Who Scored "Touchdown."
Jack Corbett pressed for his opinion on basketball in general yawned and announced that he had sold Bill James to the Mobile Bears and looked for no trouble in finding a southpaw who could win games for the Cracker. Dan Michalove admitted that he knew something about basketball and promptly asked the name of the Georgia player who scored the last "touchdown." He then told us that he understood Babe Ruth weighed just a bit more than 200 pounds and ought to break his home run record.

And so this column takes it for granted that not all of the 9,000 spectators at the Georgia-Tech night were basketball followers. It was a Georgia against Tech, however, and a crap shooting match between the two would be just as liberally patronized and we believe that a fair sprinkling of Blue Sunday advocates would be on hand to enjoy seeing it settled.

People like to see a good clean battle and to hope that the best man wins. Twice in three years Georgia and Tech have demonstrated the fact that games between themselves can be properly won and just as properly lost. "How long, etc.?"

Neutrality Easy For Henry Allen.
Observing strict neutrality when southern colleges square off to start a squabble on the field of battle is one of the most beautiful things accomplished by Henry Allen, assistant sporting editor. Henry is one man who can thoroughly enjoy an athletic battle because the chances are his Alma is going to win.

Not a Georgia fan, not a Tech fan, Henry simply has a good nature. He doesn't lose his temper when Georgia and Tech are in a battle. He doesn't lose his temper when Georgia and Tech are in a battle. He doesn't lose his temper when Georgia and Tech are in a battle.

Three Players Sure To Get Positions.
The dawn of the last day of the basketball championship tournament finds three players practically assured of positions on the all-star selection that will be announced in southern newspapers Sunday morning. Three have proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that they are leaders in their department and deserving of distinction.

Last year it was George Harmon, the little Mercer guard, who proved the distinct feature of the tournament. It is possible that Bill Redd, Chattanooga captain, has taken that honor away from Harmon this time, but George will probably be on every all-star selection, for his work has been very brilliant. Redd and Harmon are two of the certainties.

Babe Ruth, where the Washington Senators are in training. Since giving up the managerial reins at Shreveport (Louisiana league), where he had some very good seasons and some very bad ones, Billy has been on Clarke Griffith's payroll and has succeeded in digging up some fine material for the Senators.

Hard To Furnish "Strik" With Foes.
"Pat" Stribling, father-manager of the Macon middleweight battler, arrived late yesterday afternoon, having the semi-finals last night and has already reserved a box for the rest of the Stribling family for the finals tonight. "Pat" was immensely pleased at Young Stribling's victory over Johnny Klesch Thursday night. Johnny turned out to be a mighty clever ring man, "Pat" asserted.

Billy Smith Stops Over.
Billy Smith, former Atlanta manager and one of the most popular city men, who has been in the city since he was a boy, is in the city today en route to his spring training quarters in Clearwater, Fla.

May Prove "Find."
Olinger may be the find that Uncle Charley wants to round out his hurling staff for the coming campaign. At any rate, Olinger is going to higher ball than this time. We will wager on it.

Likes Crackers' New Pitchers.
"He is a great pitcher and has been for years under a man I regard as one of the best leaders in the business," said Billy. "And I know no reason why he should not succeed with this franchise. I do know that his employers have made every effort to give him players that will do prosper. I am certain that they will win a lot of games in this circuit. And if Buddy Napier reaches his goal of three years ago the team that finishes ahead of the Crackers will win the rag."

MRS. MALLORY WILLIAMS HAD 13 PILOTS

LOSES TWICE In 13 Years in Big Tent

Has New Boss Each Year—Was Plucked From Notre Dame by Frank Chance.

A record that is so unique and unusual that it is doubtful whether it will ever be equaled again by a big league ball player features the career of Frederick C. Williams, of the Phillies. Williams, who is better known as "Cy," is starting out on his thirteenth season in the National League and Arthur Fletcher will be his thirteenth manager. That makes the average one per season and each year "Cy" has been taking orders from a new superior.

The strange part of it all is that Williams has not been a glove trotter. He has played with only two clubs—the Cubs, of Chicago, and the Phillies, yet each season has resulted in a managerial shift in his career.

To familiarize the reader with this unique record the following is appended to introduce the 13 managers for whom Williams has worked:
1912—Frank Chance with the Cubs.
1913—Johnny Evers with the Cubs.
1914—Hank O'Day with the Cubs.
1915—Roger Bresnahan with the Cubs.
1916—Joe Tinker with the Cubs.
1917—Fred Mitchell with the Cubs.
1918—Pat Moran with the Phillies.
1919—Jack Coombs with the Phillies.
1920—Garry Cravath with the Phillies.
1921—Bill Donovan with the Phillies.
1922—Irving Wilhelm with the Phillies.
1923—Arthur Fletcher with the Phillies.

1924—Well, you can't tell what it will bring.
Williams was plucked from Notre Dame college in the summer of 1912 by Frank Chance but that was just when Chance was on the rugged edge of his "Peers Leader" reign. He was called the "Peers Leader" by Charles Webb Murphy when there were pennants and world series were in their prime. When the shipper Chance hit the tobacco slide with Tinker, Schurz, Mordern Brown, Ed Reulbach, Johnny Kling, Jimmy Arner, Jeff Overall and others were in their prime. When the shipper Chance hit the tobacco slide with Tinker and Murphy turned over the reins to Johnny Evers the following season.

It became an annual parade for "Cy" and his bosses. There was a boom in Chicago for "Hank" O'Day and "Hank" quit the blue uniform of the Cubs to join the White Sox. Ever, Hank followed the one-year trail and Roger Bresnahan was elevated from private to boss in 1915.

JOE TINKER SUCCEEDS BRESNAHAN WITH CUBS.
The baseball war was closed at the end of the 1915 season when the Chicago Federal League club interests gaining control in the Windy City, Joe Tinker succeeded Bresnahan.

Tinker, winning the Federal League pennant in 1915, was a fizzle in the National League, and Fred Mitchell, who had been with the Cubs since 1912, was traded to the Phillies. "Cy" arrived with the Phillies just in time to slide along the track with Owner Baker's lightning slide.

One by one they have been tried by Baker with Coombs, Cravath, Donovan, Wilhelm and Fletcher following him in order. Williams remains. "Admit it is the most remarkable part about my career," says Williams, "but I am not responsible for it. I have given each manager the best I have and will go along these lines until I draw the release ticket."

HAS NO MANAGERIAL FAVORITES IN THE LIST
"I have had to adjust myself frequently to the view of the new boss. It has been comical at times because what I was told to do one spring has been completely opposite with the rules prescribed by a new manager."

"They have all been kind to me and I would not attempt to pick a favorite out of the list of 12 for whom I have worked. You see how much I have been advised at times last summer he was not the official manager and he will be No. 12 on my list."

"With several fellows I have done more listening than talking. There was Johnny Evers who cracked a stinging whip from the bench. Hank O'Day was another who did not stop at words. Roger Bresnahan was a fighting leader. You couldn't backfire at Bresnahan at all."

"When I think over days of the past it is amusing to me now. I really believe there has been a change in the custom of a big league manager. There isn't the fighting, fussing, hollering and shouting around today that there was 10 years ago. The players just put on hard nose as usual. A player isn't going to sulk purposely because he knows he only is hurting himself."

"The managers have been less days with the Phillies since Moran got away, but I expect Fletcher to make things been overruling."

BOXING COMMISSION MAY BE ABOLISHED
Trenton, N. J., March 2.—The New Jersey boxing commission, probably will be wiped out by legislative action in a short time. The state senate has passed a bill abolishing the commission and it is expected to go through the lower house speedily after introduction Monday.

Although Governor Silzer may veto the measure, it is claimed by leaders of the commission that they have sufficient strength to pass it again over his veto. The bill would impose the commission's duties on the controller.

A motor road was completed recently to the top of Mt. Mitchell, the highest point in eastern America.

GENARO WILL FIGHT WILDE

New York, March 2.—It was a big moment for Frankie Genaro, the little New York Italian, when the announced he was fighting the world champion American flyweight, Genaro will fight the American flyweight champion, Genaro will fight the American flyweight champion, Genaro will fight the American flyweight champion.

Genaro was mobbed by fair-weather friends after his victory. One of them suggested that it had been a great night for him.

"Well, looking back, it was pretty good news when the decision was announced," Genaro said. "But when I won my title at Antwerp—that was a real thrill."

Genaro got a medal for what he did at Antwerp. He didn't get much money for winning over Villa because $2,000 of his purse had been placed in lock by the commission to reimburse some Jersey promoters for the alleged loss of a fight which didn't come off. However, if he is able to defend the title it may earn him $100,000 or more.

Villa made a sizeable fortune in the ten months that he held the championship after winning it from Johnny Ruff last summer. He and Genaro were the only first class flyweights in America and by avoiding Genaro, Villa was able to mop up in many purses of medium-size by defeating numerous other little fellows. Forced into a fight with Genaro, Villa fought an aggressive bout and to many it seemed that he had done well enough to retain his title without question.

Jimmy Wilde holds the world championship, but it is not believed that the little Welsh wizard of a few years back will be able to hold it against either of these sturdy youngsters. Wilde is matched to fight Villa here in June but the deal was made in the presumption that Villa would still be champion. His opponent now probably will be Genaro.

MATTY MAKES SPEECH AT NEWSBOYS' BANQUET
Boston, March 2.—President Christy Mathewson, of the Boston Braves, held 300 newsboys breathless here last night as he recounted how he had broken into organized baseball as a boy of 14 by picking for the team of a small Pennsylvania town.

"I was large for my age," he said, "and had just quit being a newsboy. The team was made up of grown-up husky farmers' sons and I was only a kid, but I carried my own weight. I was coming in and I had learned to use it just a little."

"They offered me a dollar to pitch for them," he said, "and I amounted to more than it does now, but it was still pretty small for an afternoon's pitching. That was my first game and we were lucky enough to win."

The newsboys will be the guests at the morning game between the Braves and the New York Giants here on April 19, Patriots' day.

SIKI LEAVES FOR FIGHT WITH MTIGUE
Paris, March 2.—(United News).—Battling Siki, the Senegalese pugilist, who raked "Gorgeous" Georges Carpentier to sleep with his mighty right, will soon be sinning the "Warrior of the Green." Siki left Paris Friday for Dublin, where he will fight Mt. Tighe, Irish wildcat, on St. Patrick's day.

The pugilist, who openly boasts that he trains on liquor, was "poured" on the train by his friends and a heavy guard went along with him. For the last three days he has been overruling.

BY HOMER GEORGE.

After one of the most sensational fights ever seen in a basketball tournament, Georgia Tech went down in defeat last night in the semi-finals before the furious onslaught of the Mississippi A. & M. quintet. The boys from the south of us played a magnificent game, featured by some of the greatest defensive work ever seen on an Atlanta court, and well deserved the 25 to 17 victory.

With the fastest team that ever wore the Gold and White, the Tech boys went into the game to dazzle the Mississippi crew by its fast play. Roane, Jenks, Brewster, Eckford and Al Stator started like whirlwinds and fought with a ferociousness which aroused the utmost enthusiasm. But Mississippi refused to be dazzled and themselves showed speed and staying powers of rare sort. Both teams battled as if their very lives were at stake.

And, boy, it was a battle. It will go down in history as one of the hardest fought games of the series from the very first blast of the referee's whistle until the final gun ended it. Player after player was hurled across the floor; head after head bucked the planking and body after body smashed against another. At times it resembled a free-for-all; but it was clean and no intentional roughness marked the play. It was simply fight, fight, fight and then again fight, as had never been seen here before.

Gatchell Is Hero.

To Mississippi went the honors mainly because of the wonderful, outstanding play of one man—the superman of the tournament—K. P. Gatchell, the pre-eminent guard. This man was a whole team in himself and played all the count on both offense and defense. In the latter respect his work surely stood out in bold relief against that of any other man ever seen in Atlanta and to him, more than anything else and all else, belonged the glory of a most glorious victory.

Too much praise cannot be given this magnificent star for his tremendous game. He not only stopped Tech from making many points but contributed two spectacular field goals and generally conducted himself in a way to win the utmost applause from the thousands packed in the auditorium.

The struggle was decidedly the most spectacular of the entire tournament to date—not even excepting the magnificent battle between Tech and Georgia. To the Tech players went a glory which is seldom won by a defeated team. They were never beaten until the pistol sounded at the finish, but battled all over the court with an effort which at times seemed almost supernatural. One after another took the count from exhaustion and substitutes took their place only to give way themselves to fresher men. Every trick in the bag was tried, but all could not stop the electrifying play of Mississippi.

While the Tech boys were making their magnificent stand, the Mississippi crew were fighting with a skill, a determination and a do-or-die spirit equal to that of Tech. One of their men went by the boards from absolute exhaustion, but all the others stood by their colors and fought with a spirit which could not be denied. Standing out over and above all the others was Gatchell on offense and defense—directing and participating as only a superman could. Every man on the team gallantly rallied to his every call and always passed, tossed, dribbled and scrambled over the floor as valiantly as any team could.

Norris High Scorer.

Norris, the spectacular forward, was the high scorer for the victors. He annexed 10 points, all of which came by the field goal route. He made two sensational throws and one or two others which lacked the spectacular but made the points. Gatchell made two especially thrilling goals both from the center of the floor. Turner got one from under the basket after a fine pass and Anderson did likewise. Bryant got one from near the basket and the other three points were added by Perkins, who was playing a stupendous game at all times.

For Tech Jenks was the high scorer with six points, all from field goals. Eckford and Al Stator each made two spectacular field goals while Roane got the other three points on foul throws. Roane was stopped dead by Gatchell, as was Brewster and most of the other Tech boys. At one time Gatchell broke up three throws in instant succession, two on one side of the basket and the other on the opposite. As the ball jumped around after each attempt was stopped he jumped in front of the next man to get it. This was the most sensational work of the entire game.

When the game started it was evident that Tech was counting on her speed. The boys were like lightning. But Mississippi was fast too, and the jabs of each were fruitless for a full minute or more when Jenks got a foul for first blood. A foul was called on Anderson and Tech got two free throws but missed fire on each. Roane seeming off from the foul line. Then a foul on Jenks gave Mississippi a free throw, which Perkins missed and Tech still had a lead of two points. Next came a lead by Anderson which tied the score.

With it tied both fought madly and a foul was called on Al Stator, giving Mississippi two free throws. Perkins missed the first but made the second, taking the lead. Norris got the ball a bit later and from the center of the floor looped a field goal through the basket without touching the hoop, taking a three-point lead. Al Stator then dribbled up fairly close to the basket and tossed a field goal. Jenks quickly followed this up with another field goal and Tech was one point in front.

Tech asked for time out and upon the resumption of play Gatchell dropped a beautiful throw through the basket for the lead. A foul on Anderson was called but Roane again missed both throws. Al Stator then came to the fore again with his second field goal of the night from quite a distance and once more Tech was leading. Norris got another chance fairly close to the basket and made a finger of it for two points. Then Gatchell tried one of his famous throws from the center of the court and it dropped through, giving his team a three point lead. Then Eckford got another field goal near the end of the half, cutting the lead to one point. And the half ended this way: Miss. A. & M., 17; Tech, 10.

The second half opened up with Norris getting the first score, when he snugged a field goal. Jenks equalled his effort a bit later and it was still a one point lead for Mississippi. Then a foul on Jenks gave Miss. two free throws, one of which was made and one missed by Jenks. A minute later a foul was called on Gatchell and Roane made both points, making the score a tie at 14 all. A foul on Stator netted one point for the south-erners and then Sikes slipped through and got a field goal. Here Denick and Matheson replaced Eckford and Jenks.

"Party Gets Rough." The game was getting particularly rough at this stage and all kinds of spills were happening but no one knocked out. Fisher was letting the players get a bit away from him in the fierceness of the play. With the subs in and play resumed a foul was called on Bryant, who had replaced Sikes at center, the latter being exhausted and of little use to his team. Roane made the point, but Norris took the limelight again with a pretty basket for two points. A minute later a foul was called on Eckford and Roane rushed back in the fray. In another minute Jenks was all but knocked unconscious by a hard fall, with his head hitting the floor. Denick replaced him and the game was on again.

Norris smashed his way to the front again with another two point goal from the floor shortly after this and then Eckford got another for Tech, the last, she was destined to score. The Aggies were leading by six points at this stage with but a short time of play left. Then Turner received the ball while under the basket and the final score of the game was made by the Aggies shortly before the whistle sounded.

CHATTANOOGA, 24.

MERCER, 19.

BY HENRY ALLEN.

Fighting with their backs to the wall and with all odds against them the University of Chattanooga five staged a great rally in the last ten minutes of play, which gradually cut down Mercer University's lead and finally gave the Tennesseans a 24 to 19 victory.

The 'Noogans were rushed off their feet in the first half by the powerful offense of the Mercer quintet and Bill Redd and his teammates were passing and shooting wildly. Mercer had things their way and then settled down seemingly content to hold the Tennessee five to a low score.

But the tables turned in the last half, when Redd and Barnes dropped in pretty field goals which put them in a threatening position. Simmons, center, and Smith, forward, of the Mercer five who had been removed from the game by Coach Cody earlier in the half, were sent back into the line-up to stop the attack of the 'Noogans, but Redd's outfit was not to be outdone.

Redd missed a foul shot with the score standing 19 to 18 in the favor of the Macon team. He was given another chance when Smith later committed his fourth foul and was ejected from the game and brought the score to 19 all. Hill then sent the 'Noogans out in front with a pretty field goal.

Mercer was fighting hard. Simmons, the center, was hardly able to move about the floor, because of an injury to his ankle in the first half. Harmon, all-southern guard of last year, made attempt after attempt to drop one through the nets from the center of the court. McWilliams, Pope and Wilkes were fighting like demons, while the crowd was almost in a frenzy as the timekeepers were busy figuring up the few remaining seconds.

In this short time the Mercer team seemed to go to pieces, while the Chattanooga outfit appeared to have settled down to the same steady pace that has been noticeable in their play during the tournament. Redd and his teammates would get the ball in the far end of the court and hold it play-ful for time, but Giddens Wilkes and Pope would force them to get rid of it. Smith was first to score in the first half, dropping in a field tally for Mercer, but Redd then sent in two foul counters which evened matters.

Harmon got two from the field which carried Mercer four points to the good. Redd added another to 'Nooga's score in the mid-west today began their invasion of Urbana, Ill., to compete there tomorrow in the University of Illinois annual indoor relay career in the biggest event of its kind in the country.

Forty-seven teams, with more than 250 individual athletes are entered. The relay will include six major relay events, an all-around inter-collegiate championship, and ten special events.

THOMAS GIRL TEAM WINNER

Moultrie, Ga., March 2.—(Special.) In the first round of play in the southwest Georgia girls' basketball tournament, held here Thursday night, Thomasville defeated Sylvester 50 to 8, while Moultrie defeated Carlo 36 to 20. For Thomasville Hazel Burch was the star, while Morris was best for Moultrie.

Friday afternoon Camilla defeated Baconton in the first game, 41 to 24. The star for Baconton was Ethel Mullins at right forward. Miss Mullins shot 14 points during the game. Crow for Camilla was leading scorer with 21 points.

The second game was won by Pavo 28 to 9 from Meigs. Redfern was high scorer for Pavo with 7 points while Crowl was high for Meigs with 7 points for Meigs. Saturday morning the semi-finals will be played at 10 and 11 o'clock with the finals taking place Saturday night.

Interest in the tournament is at a high pitch here due to the close rivalry between the teams in the association and large crowds attend all games. There are ten teams entered in the tournament with each team bringing ten players, making an even hundred young lady athletes in Moultrie at one time.

It appears now that Pavo, Adel, Thomasville and Moultrie have about equal chances for winning the tournament, but it is a known fact that Pavo rarely runs true to form in basketball tournaments, and a dark horse may win.

Simmons Is Elastic.

Simmons seems to be elastic. Once, he took an awful tumble and landed in a sitting position. He immediately bounced off that position of anatomy, like a rubber ball. He came near to suffering a casualty when his leg got twisted under him in the thick of the fray.

Surprising was the closeness of the guarding throughout the night. One shot at a time was the maximum for the evening. They were on that ball like a pack of hungry wolves, and lost no time in sending it out of the danger zone. Chattanooga was especially strong in this feature, so there's no telling what is going to happen tonight.

TOURNAMENT PICK-UPS

BY JOHN STATOR.

That Chattanooga defeated Mercer was probably due to the seven rooters who sat in the balcony. Though their number was less than ten, they raised enough noise to be heard back in the home town. Ever once in a while they would break loose with some fiery yell for the alma mater.

Mercer on Hand.

Of course, Mercer was there with the standard Drub Drub yell which rocked the house on occasions. Many of the students have been in town for three days living the best way they could. Mercer's success is due in no small measure to them. Mercer has a loyal student body that has won the respect of this town.

The marked similarity of uniforms at the beginning of the Mercer-Chattanooga game caused no little confusion among the men, and they were constantly passing the ball to the wrong man. However, it had its advantages for it gave "Red" Simmons an opportunity of displaying half his manly form to the public. He pulled off this in full view of the spectators, with a characteristic nonchalance.

Some Tumbling Stunts.

You should have seen the double tumbling stunt done by Messrs. Redd and Wilkes, probably the largest and smallest men on their respective teams. Wilkes in a desperate endeavor to get hold of the ball lost his balance, and cut Redd's feet out from under him as cleanly as a scythe cuts down wheat.

Simmons seems to be elastic. Once, he took an awful tumble and landed in a sitting position. He immediately bounced off that portion of anatomy, like a rubber ball. He came near to suffering a casualty when his leg got twisted under him in the thick of the fray.

Tichenor's Habit.

Close Guarding.

Surprising was the closeness of the guarding throughout the night. One shot at a time was the maximum for the evening. If a man took a try at the basket and missed, that was all for him until he had recovered the ball from under the other basket, for guards were a-doin' 'em. They were on that ball like a pack of hungry wolves, and lost no time in sending it out of the danger zone. Chattanooga was especially strong in this feature, so there's no telling what is going to happen tonight.

PROBABLY the most widely read article that Elbert Hubbard or anybody else ever wrote was his "A Message to Garcia." It's a story of GRIT and DETERMINATION on the part of a small, insignificant man who had hitherto been scarcely known except as a member of his company. The story goes that it became imperative that President Cleveland get a message to Garcia who was somewhere in the fastnesses of Cuba—no one knew where. The message must be delivered immediately. How could it be done. Rowan, the man in the ranks, the man with GRIT and DETERMINATION, was suggested for the job. He was the man selected. He was the man who DID IT. ROWAN FOUND GARCIA and delivered the message.

How did he do it? Mr. Hubbard does not tell us, but we do know that Rowan recognized the fact that everything depended on him. He knew that nothing must deter his efforts, no matter how great the obstacle. He WENT! He WORKED! He WON! And that is the idea we want to get over to every member of The Constitution's Help-Yourself Club. You are in this campaign to WIN. A fine, handsome Automobile is at the end of the trail as a reward for your "carrying the message to Garcia." The same GRIT and DETERMINATION that won for Rowan will win for you. Let Nothing deter YOU in your efforts.

"Roads of Remembrance" Will Interest Atlantans

An aftermath of the world war which shows an encouraging upward trend is the fact that memorials to our splendid dead no longer take the form of shafts of cold, unyielding granite, but are giving place to living memorials in the form of trees.

Trees, which as the years pass, will grow in girth and in stature, and will yield protection and shade as Emerson so graphically puts it "whole neighborhoods of men."

Charles Lathrop Pack, the president of the American Tree association, tells of these living memorials in one interesting article in the current issue of The Nature Magazine.

Atlantans Interested.

An excerpt from his article will prove of first interest to Atlantans, where so many trees have had ceremonial planting in Piedmont Park by the Authors' club, and on the Bankhead highway, by the women's commission for Georgia, from the Alabama line to South Carolina.

After pointing out the economic value of the tree and picturing the sufferer in which our forests have been devastated during the past decade, Mr. Pack tells of the planting of great "Roads of Remembrance," and shows the part taken by the General Federation of Women's clubs in this forest form of memorial tribute.

Victory Trees.

"The main highway from New York city," says Mr. Pack, "to Buffalo is to be a 'Road of Remembrance.'"

"The first trees along it have already been planted. 'Victory' oaks have been planted in Louisiana along the Jefferson highway which leads from New Orleans to Winnipeg, Canada, and towns all along the route are making plans of memorial tree planting. In many places in California the 'Road of Remembrance' idea has made great progress. In Indiana and Ohio the women's clubs plan to set out memorial trees along every mile of the Lincoln highway in its course across these states. At Paducah, Ky., 2,000 memorial trees lining a victory road have been set out by the Mcracken County Historical society, which undertook to provide a tree for each man and woman of the county who answered the call of the flag. In Tennessee the Federation of Women's clubs is pushing the work, while in Georgia the D. A. R. has taken up the association's educational campaign."

At Lima, Ohio, the northwestern section of the Ohio Federation has begun memorial tree planting. These are but a few examples chosen at random from many hundreds of similar undertakings reported to the American Tree association.

"The memorial tree is clothed in the finest of human sentiment," continued Mr. Pack. "In its ever renewing growth it stands forth as a thing alive, a simple symbol to keep forever green the memory of those in whose honor it is planted. For today and for generations yet unborn, the message of the memorial tree is the message of life."

Dr. Porter to Speak At Baptist Church.

Dr. Henry Alford Porter continues his series on "Great Questions of the Day" at the Second Baptist church Sunday night. The discussion of these vital themes is attracting much interest and drawing large congregations. Dr. Porter's subject on the coming Sunday night will be "The Last Judgement: Will There Be a Final Reckoning? What Does Christ Say?"

His subject at the morning hour will be "The Deity of Christ."

Prominent Women Visitors Speak on D.A.R. Work

Mrs. George Maynard Minor, of Waterbury, Conn., president-general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who spent Thursday evening at the Georgian Terrace, en route to Macon. Mrs. G. Wallace Hangar, organizing secretary general, and Mrs. John L. Buell, vice president-general of Connecticut, accompanied Mrs. Minor.

BY MAINER LEE TOLER.

Mrs. George Maynard Minor, president-general of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. G. Wallace Hangar, organizing secretary-general of the society, and Mrs. John Laidlaw Buell, vice president-general of Connecticut, were visitors in Atlanta Thursday evening at the Georgian Terrace hotel, as guests of Mrs. Howard H. McCall, vice president general from Georgia. They were en route to Macon, where they spent Friday as the guests of Mrs. Charles Ackerman, state regent of the Georgia D. A. R., and the two Macon D. A. R. chapters.

Though these distinguished women were in Atlanta for only a few hours, they received a number of prominent women who are leaders in the two local D. A. R. chapters. These included Mrs. Bun Wyllie, regent of the Atlanta chapter; Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. James Logan, Mrs. A. D. Woodford, Mrs. Lillian Tidwell, Mrs. Christian Clarke, regent of the Joseph Habersham chapter; Mrs. William Scott Coleman, and Mrs. R. K. Rambo. Grouped in one corner of the attractive lounge room these women enjoyed an hour's chat with the distinguished guests, and how impressed I was with the fact that wherever or whenever a group of Daughters of the American Revolution are found together there is never a loss for point of contact. So many interesting details were told of the work of the national organization and so many questions were answered.

Mrs. Minor, in the same charming, dignified manner in which she presides over the national annual conferences in the national capital, related some of the phases of work being done by the national society, urging the continuance of the present Americanization program by instilling the ideals of America into the hearts of foreigners entering our immigration gates every day. Mrs. Minor also told of the handsome new D. A. R. administration building in Washington which has just been completed and stands next to the beautiful Memorial Continental hall. She stated that the national D. A. R. now owned property in the capital worth $1,000,000.

Secretary General. Mrs. Wallace Hangar, who is organizing secretary general of the national organization and also national chairman of building and grounds, told of how she as chairman had looked after this property with loving care and attention.

Mrs. Hangar also explained the work being accomplished through the organizing secretary general's office. It was a surprise to a few of us to know that permission has been granted from the national board for the formation of chapters in Paris.

Informal Reception. Mrs. Buell, who is also national chairman of the building and grounds, told of how she as chairman had looked after this property with loving care and attention.

Shanghai, South America and there is a possibility that chapters will be formed in England, Australia and India.

Mrs. Hangar has served in many important offices of the national society, D. A. R., serving first as page in the national conference.

I know of no woman better fitted to enter the race as candidate for national president general of this great patriotic organization. With her many years of experience in the service of the D. A. R. and her natural gift as an executive, combined with a rare dignity and poise and a rich heritage, I am convinced she would make an ideal leader of our great society.

Immigrant's Manual.

Mrs. John L. Buell, vice president general of Connecticut, and national chairman of Americanization, added much to the talk on that worthwhile subject, telling of the immigrant's manual published by the national society.

Mrs. Buell has the distinction of having held the office of state regent in Connecticut, her home state, for 13 years before being elected to the office of vice president general.

It was my good fortune to have a few minutes' personal talk with Mrs. Minor, and realizing that Mrs. Minor's term of office would soon expire, I asked her to ask her a few questions. She is just the sort of person who would grant an interview where the organization that lies so close to her heart is concerned. The first question I asked of Mrs. Minor was: "What is the biggest thing you have gained from your three years' of administration in the National D. A. R.?"

For a moment she paused, and then with the expression of a sincere Christian woman, she answered: "The greatest thing that has come to me through my administration is the learning of the true meaning of the word 'service.'"

She illustrated this by telling me of her great love for the Daughters of the American Revolution and how she would always labor for its cause, and then she spoke of the love that was in her heart for the great work being done in Connecticut, her native state, in connection with the state reformatory for women. Mrs. Minor has done much for this great institution, being one of the state directors.

When asked what would be her parting message to the Daughters all over the United States when she retired from her present office she eagerly replied: "My parting message will be one of love and appreciation and I would leave with them the thought that the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution will grow to be just as big as the love we put into it."

It was then I realized the real reason for the successful administration of Mrs. George Maynard Minor, for the keynote during her term of office has been a spiritual one and one of love.

BEAUTY CHATS

WAYS TO GAIN FAT.

Not nearly so many people write me asking how to get fat as how to get thin. Thinness is fashionable, which is fortunate, since it is a great deal harder to put on flesh than to take it off. It is obvious that you cannot gain on what you do not eat, therefore under-eating must reduce you. Where as under-eating, unless scientifically done, is more apt to give you indigestion and pimples than the needed pounds.

So the thing to do, if you wish to gain flesh, is to eat easily assimilated foods of a very high caloric value, that is foods that will make fat. I would suggest that you try any one of the following, whichever suits best your appetite or digestion. Weigh yourself beforehand, then weigh yourself regularly once a week for the next several months.

Put two tablespoons of olive oil into a small winged glass of grape juice and swallow this just before lunch and dinner. This will not destroy your normal appetite for food, but will give you a lot of easily assimilated pure fat.

Another idea is to drink milk with as much cream in as you can afford with each meal and at bedtime. If you do this between meals it will destroy your appetite and its own good effect. Another idea is to make the following delicious mixture: Beat up an egg and beat it into a glass of cold milk into which two tablespoons of melted chocolate syrup, chocolate which has been melted with sugar and hot water (several weeks' supply can always be kept on hand). Add to this as much plain or whipped cream as you can afford. The result is the most delicious drink you have ever tasted with a caloric value well over 500, equal in nourishment to a meal, but more easily digested. Take this at bedtime.

Discouraged.—As your doctor has already said that you are causing these facial eruptions by eating too many sweets, I do not see how I could do better than to tell you to limit your taste for these things, and to follow his advice about simplifying your diet. Try it for a few weeks anyway, and look for an improvement in your complexion.

G. V.—I do not think that steaming the hair would cause it to curl. For some unaccountable reason some people who have naturally curly hair have periods for several months at a time when the hair will not curl at all. For instance, hair that is very curly during the summer, especially during damp weather, will become quite straight in the middle of the winter after a few months of our overheated buildings. We also know of the hair that will not curl at all if there is any dampness, yet it will stay in curl at all other times. After these winter months have passed it is quite likely that your hair will fall right into the same natural waves that it always had.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh.
Author of "The Housewife's Guide to Saving," "The Art of Saving," etc.

"Will it fade?" is a question the average shopper frequently asks in buying garments or wash materials. Here are some points to remember about color: Dark blue in woolen material or gingham usually fades a little. Light blue fades considerably. Woolen material of red usually wears well and fades little. Red cotton, when washed, looks less brilliant and soon fades in washing.

Woolen material of gray, white and black, or combinations of these colors, are usually satisfactory. Cotton materials of gray or black usually show starch in washing. Lavender is a poor color to buy, because it fades so easily in cotton goods. Pink, too, fades with washing. If you buy a dress, however, it may prove satisfactory.

Green is seldom a satisfactory color. In good, high-priced gingham it may not fade, but in cheap ones it often turns yellow. Brown is usually good in gingham, but is inclined to fade in woolen materials.

There are, of course, simple fading tests that one can make, such as placing a sample of the material in the sun, with one-half exposed and the other covered, and leaving it for several days.

Cotton Meet Adopts Measure Asking U. S. Aid in Weevil Fight

New Orleans, La., March 2.—Suggested revision of the rules of Carolina mills and a discussion of New England mill rules governing the purchase and handling of cotton and the relations with the sellers and a decision where practical to make the regulation of the two organizations uniform the principal subjects before the final sessions of the National Cotton conference here today.

It was decided at the closing meeting to leave all questions discussed at the conference in the hands of a committee to be appointed by F. S. Butler, president of the New Orleans Cotton exchange, who was selected yesterday as president of the organization.

The committee will conduct negotiations with the New England and Carolina mills relating to rule regulations of the two organizations, and take up other questions brought before the conference.

It was also decided to hold another conference of the various interests in New York at a date to be announced later.

A resolution was adopted today calling on President Harding and congress for further government aid in fighting the boll weevil.

The resolution declared the ravages of the pest had cost the south a billion dollars in the last three years.

Delay Dope Hearing.

Augusta, Ga., March 2.—Preliminary hearing for Joe Fontana, Jr., who is held here charged with violating the Harrison narcotic law was continued by United States Commissioner C. J. Skinner, Jr., this morning until Saturday, March 10. The government asked for the continuance in order to permit an analysis of pellets said to have been taken from Fontana's pockets at the time of the arrest. The pellets are believed by officers to be morphine. Fontana posted bond of $500.

What Women Wear

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Milliners Do Not Attempt to Change the Conspicuous Decoration at One Side of Hats. Nearly All New Shapings Along Old Lines. But Feathers Give Way to Fantastic Bows That Stand Out From the Head.

Women do not weary of drooping decoration on one side of the hat. At least, they haven't so far. They like it enough to continue it through spring.

The hats worn at Palm Beach are considered forerunners of summer, so if this be so the helmet hat with its narrow crown band will go to the successful way, undisturbed by serious rivals.

The more formal type of hat does not avoid decoration, but there is still no return to the elaborate millinery of the pre-war. We have ceased to wear plain shapes, unadorned. We have accepted the revival of batkins. These are so inconspicuous they are not noticed. Only two kinds are permitted: telescope pins with a jeweled ornament at each end, placed in middle of crown; two longer pins with ornamental heads four inches long, put close together on left side of crown. Whatever fantastic quizz or artificial composition of stone can be found for such pins, indeed a willing public. They continue to make the plain felt hat decorative.

New small hats that are pushing their way into millinery fashions are different brims from the helmet. They turn up instead of down. They do not show the eyebrows, but they reveal the eyes. The crowns are out of all proportion to the brims. They are as big as a bushel measure, but supple and pliable. A woman does not look as though she were carrying anything heavy and uncomfortable on her head.

Such a shape is shown in the sketch. It is of green and beige straw braid with ribbon in both colors cut to points and flaring widely over one ear. This bow is fantastic. It is meant to Spring hat of mingled green and beige straw braid decorated with ribbon in the same colors, cut to points and arranged at one side with fantastic knot.

he. Its mission is to direct attention to itself. There are several pieces of it, each cut with five star-shaped points that reach far out from the ear.

A bird with a glimpsing eye could see that decoration no longer continues to droop. Such reversal of fashion gives a different twist to the commonplace hat. It is neither meek nor limp. It is girlish. If made of stiff ribbon its owner will pull the bow into the farthest reaches it will go. It need not be wired, although milliners put wide flat wire at the edges of those airplane bows which go across the back of head in poke bonnets.

It is not possible to get this distended effect with chicken feathers, nor with pompos of silk floss. Ribbon is needed. It may be taffeta, faille, watered silk. It is better with a picot edge than plain.

WITH YESTERDAY'S CEREAL. Whenever you have leftover cereal on hand you have the wherewithal for a really delicious delicacy—not something just to heat over into the rather unpalatable mass that heated-over cereal usually is, but something really delicious.

To begin with, any of the very fine-grained cereals make tempting desserts if they are simply moulded in custard cups, or else cut in neat squares and served with cream, fruit or a sauce of fruit syrup. This applies to the fine-grained cereals, such as farina.

Then there are cereal muffins. You can, indeed, add cooked cereal to any muffin batter, leaving out some of the flour.

COULD HARDLY DO ANY WORK

But Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound This Woman Feels So Well

Keeseville, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for the good it has done me. I was so much troubled with female weakness I could hardly do any work. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and read it to my husband. He said, 'You had better try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,' so I bought six bottles, and by taking it I am not troubled as I was. I am gaining strength and getting fleshy. My female troubles have vanished and I have never felt so well. The Liver Pills are the best I ever took. If you think my letter will encourage other sufferers you have my permission to use my advertisement."—Mrs. SARAH BLAIS, Box 177, Keeseville, N. Y.

Doing the housework for the average American family is some task, and many women lose their health in so doing. If you, as a housewife, are troubled with backache, irregularities, are easily tired out and irritable, or have other disagreeable ailments caused by some weakness, give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. Let it help you.

CALL BELLE ISLE TAXICABS

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

To Mark Tins.

It is sometimes very difficult to fasten labels on tin holders and canisters. Add a little brown sugar to the paste and it will cause them to stick firmly.

Brilliant Jewelry. Gold jewelry containing stones can be made clean and brilliant if washed in warm suds made of yellow soap, to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

Pot Roast. When you are going to pot-roast a joint of meat, roll it in flour before it is placed in the fat to become brown. It will brown better and more evenly and the flour will add the required thickness to the gravy.

Co-operation Promised.

Assurances of fullest co-operation in the prosecution of the alleged slayers of Federal Tilt Inspector Lochridge, in Echols county, were given by Clifford E. Hay, solicitor general of the southern circuit, in a letter received by Governor Hardwick on Friday.

Mr. Hay, who resides in Thomasville, said that he would be glad to have Attorney General George M. Napier help in the prosecution and would co-operate to his utmost ability in the case.

Ed. Dunbar Hanged.

Ed. Dunbar, negro, was hanged in Bryan county Friday after a last minute effort to secure a respite from the governor failed. The negro was convicted of the murder of a white man and the governor declared he could see no extenuating circumstances in the case.

Federal Worker Here.

Miss Lillie M. Jones, of the census bureau, Washington, D. C., is at present going over the reports of the Georgia prison commission at the capitol, gathering statistics for the bureau's report on prisoners and juvenile delinquents.

This report, says Miss Jones, is issued at the time of the taking of each census, or shortly thereafter, the last one having been compiled in 1910. Full statistics on the subject are compiled from every state in the union. While it is impossible to tell how long it will require for the work, she expects to be here for about one month longer.

Upshaw Resents Solon's Remarks On 'Junket' Votes

Denies Free Drawing Room Cinched His Vote on Any Measure.

Washington, March 2.—A verbal clash between Representatives Upshaw, of Georgia, and Blanton, of Texas, both democrats, threw the house into a parliamentary wrangle tonight and ended in the expunging from the record of remarks which Mr. Upshaw said questioned his motives.

Speaking in opposition to a resolution for a joint congressional investigation of the subject of reforestation, Mr. Blanton charged it was another "junket."

RAILROAD COMPLETES MANY FREIGHT CARS

Waycross, Ga., March 2.—(Special) Three hundred and fifty new freight cars have just been completed at the local Atlanta Coast Line shops in this city and en route now in the hands of shop officials calling for 500 additional cars.

The construction of cars in their own shops is a new experiment for the Atlantic Coast Line, who previously has contracted with private companies for the rolling stock of the road. Approximately 2,000 men now are employed in the local shops, the company having steadily increased its force since the strike on July 1. The problem of tending the overflows is causing the authorities and real estate men much worry.

REGENSTEIN'S

THE VITAL FLAME

BY MAY CHRISTIE

A Stirring Serial of Primitive Passions

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.
Marcella Field, well bred and beautiful, inclined to be worldly, crossing the Atlantic from America to England's strategy attracted her.

Miss Holden, a handsome young woman, who falls in love with her and comes to her aid. He suggests that something is wrong in her decision and his guess is right, for until she had met him Marcella had about made up her mind to accept the wealth and prestige offered her by marriage to Warwick Treman, a power in the financial world.

Treman had for four years pursued her, she had met him in Switzerland and had joined him, without the knowledge of her father, in a late sailing party. Treman had been able to bring her to the marriage point.

Deirdre, cat-in-the-hat of a hand of crookedness, who had been a part of the marriage, and who is overheard while Treman is talking to Marcella.

CHAPTER III.
The woman raised a tear-stained face. Marcella's advent neither surprised nor embarrassed her. In a world of ups and downs (principally "downs") she was beyond that sort of thing.

"Nothing's the matter, except the appalling rottenness of life," she answered drearily. With a weary gesture she pushed back the thick, fair masses of her hair, drew her kimono closer around her slim figure, and rose to her feet. "You'd better not stay here," she added, ironically, though with a quick look over her bruised shoulder towards the other door.

"I'm afraid you're in trouble," said Marcella kindly, "forgive me intruding in this way, but I thought I might be of some use. Your shoulder—"

The woman reddened.
"Oh, that's nothing. I bumped it this morning against the wardrobe, for the ship was rolling so. It's good of you to offer, all the same. There aren't many women aboard who'd be so kind. They all hate me."

On a sudden impulse, Marcella urged:
"Come in my stateroom, and keep me company for a bit. The sea's so rough that I'm not going down to dinner. I'm not too wonderful a sailor, are you?" Subconsciously she knew this woman was intensely lonely and unhappy, and here was a chance to exercise real sympathy.

Listlessly the woman followed her, remarking:
"I've done this crossing sixteen times, and the sea doesn't worry me a bit." Then, glancing round Marcella's stateroom which the girl had made extremely pretty, with fresh flowers which came daily to her from the ice chambers of the ship, and with photographs in silver frames, she halted before one of the latter, and with a sharp intake of breath, said suddenly:

"Who's this man?"
"A friend of mine, in London," Marcella's tones were cool. It was one thing to take pity on this semi-hysterical person, and quite another matter to be cross-examined by her.

"Do you mind telling me his name?" This almost breathlessly.

"Of course not. He is Mr. Warwick Treman." She looked curiously at her interrogator. "Have you met him?" (This, of course, was quite impossible.)

"Not under that name," came the surprising answer. Then, hastily, as though realizing the peculiarity of the reply:

"This gentleman here must be the double of the man I knew. It was twelve years ago in Washington—but, of course, it's not the same."

Nevertheless, she looked long and keenly at the photograph.

The stewardess arrived with a plate of cold chicken and some salad, and Marcella ordered a second portion of the same for her new-found guest. When Mrs. Tomkins had withdrawn, after a dubious glance at the visitor, Marcella pleasantly remarked:

"Speaking of names, I don't know you yet. Mine is Marcella Field."

"And mine is Deirdre," the woman's glance suddenly roved on the valuable pendant round the other's neck, and then traveled to the diamond-and-platinum wrist-watch that the girl was wearing.

"It's none of my business, of course, but if you take my tip, you'll deposit these in the purser's safe for the remainder of this voyage. And—don't let on to anyone that it was I who gave you the hint."

Marcella looked astonished.
"Do you mean to say that there's a thief aboard?"

"I'm not saying anything," said the woman called Deirdre, relapsing into apathy once again.

The stewardess brought her meal, and she partook of it in silence, sitting in a low chair near Marcella, with a tray upon her knees. The latter repeatedly studied the pretty, common, rather peaky little face, of which the obvious make-up was ravaged by recent tears.

Marcella was at a loss for conversation. Something must be said, however, so—

"Have you enjoyed the voyage?" she asked banally.

Deirdre gave a low, mocking laugh. "Yes—like poison!" She turned her queer eyes on the speaker. First seemed to be smouldering in their depths, making them oddly beautiful, and Marcella gazed, half fascinated, half alarmed. Was the creature mad, or what?

As though the latter had interpreted her thought, she added quickly:
"It's only men I hate—not women—always they hate me."

"Why should they?"
"Ah, that's a long story. No time just now to tell. Besides, it's not a very pretty one, although a man—"

her dilated glance turned for an instant to the photograph of Warwick Treman, seemed to turn a thought round, then dismissed it as improbable—"a man was at the bottom of the tale."

She suddenly drew out a cigarette case in wrought gold, and queried:
"Do you mind if I smoke? My nerves are shot to pieces, and it sort of soothes 'em."

"Why certainly not. May I have one, too?" said Marcella, anxious to put this strange Deirdre instantly.

"I'm sorry—no. These cigarettes wouldn't suit you. You'd better stick to your own kind—I mean, if you're not a good sailor—and the cabin's pitching so—"

She had flushed up, and the hand that held her cigarette case shook a trifle.

"You're quite right. I shan't smoke at all," replied Marcella, quietly, yet bewildered. Then she added: "You were telling me that women hate you. Why? Is it because they're jealous?"

"Not so much jealous, as afraid. Oh, not your kind, of course. I couldn't hold a candle to a girl like you. But—"

—frankly—"in a hard school I've learnt the art of pleasing men. And generally I do succeed—although hate them." She blew a ring of smoke into the air, and watched it circle.

"But sometimes I let go, and tell 'em so—although it never pays," and she hitched the gorgeous kimono over her bruised shoulder. "Bah! They're like children, if you go the right way manage them. Flattery is all they want."

Another thrilling installment Monday. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

MAX MEYERHARDT, ROME JUDGE, DIES

Long Prominent in Masonic Circles, a Political Leader and Active Worker in Civic Affairs.

Rome, Ga., March 2.—(Special).—Judge Max Meyerhardt, 68 years old, died here early this morning after an illness of six weeks.

Judge Meyerhardt long has been prominent in political and Masonic circles of Georgia. He has served continuously for 40 years as worshipful master of Cherokee lodge of Masons, was grand master of Georgia Masons for seven years, and was worshipful master of the Seventh District Masonic convention, which he organized as the first in the state, for 26 years.

He was secretary of the Rome board of education for 25 years prior to 1909, and since that time he has served as city attorney of Rome.

While still a young man he was appointed by Governor J. B. Gordon as judge of the Floyd county superior court and has presided over the sessions of the court since that time.

The Masonic Herald was founded by Judge Meyerhardt 29 years ago and was published by him until his death. He has been president of the Carnegie library of Rome since its establishment in 1910.

As a leader of the Rome bar and an active worker in civic affairs he has stood prominent. Perhaps no man in Georgia was better known and liked, owing to his prominence in Masonic circles and as a political leader.

Surviving Judge Meyerhardt are two sons: David J. Meyerhardt, former assistant United States district attorney for the northern district of Georgia, and Sam Meyerhardt, both of Atlanta; six daughters, Mrs. Hester Nathan, of Brunswick, Ga.; Miss Rebecca Meyerhardt, of Atlanta, and the Misses Ruth, Sarah, Diana and Elizabeth Meyerhardt, of Rome; one brother, Louis Meyerhardt, city editor of the Tribune-Herald, of Rome, and two sisters, Mrs. A. Moses and Miss Julia Meyerhardt, of Rome.

Definite funeral arrangements have not been announced, but the services will be conducted with highest Masonic honors.

Skin Ablaze with Eczema
Constant Itching Almost Unbearable!

We know there is one thing that stops eczema, and that is more red-blood-cells! S. S. S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist.

We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it! Skin eruptions, eczema with all its fiery, skin-digging torture and its soul-tearing, unrelenting itching, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting-giants of nature! S. S. S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1892! S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleaners and body-builders known to us mortals! When you put these facts together—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. Mrs. Arthur N. Spahr, Pearl St., Newark, Ohio, writes:

"My little girl had a very bad case of eczema. She began taking S. S. S. and in six days I think you very much. I tell my friends what a good medicine it is. I cannot tell too much about it, for I know it is S. S. S."

Here is your opportunity. S. S. S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S. S. S. does build red-blood-cells, it cures rheumatism, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, beautifies the complexion, builds you up when you are run down. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

S.S.S. makes you feel like yourself again

Mrs. Rea Jackson Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"I suffered with a rough, red skin and practically all parts of my body were affected. Later pimples began to form which caused severe itching and burning. The pimples were very hard and, and finally came through the skin in a dry, festering condition. They were so aggravating I could not sleep for hours after retiring."

"I had been affected for more than one year when I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. They gave instant relief and I used two cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, when I was healed."

Auto Accident Leads to Wedding Of Macon Couple

Marriage Between Lawyer and Lanier High Teacher Solemnized.

Macon, Ga., March 2.—(Special).—A romance dating back to the time when three persons were injured in an automobile accident at a bridge over the Central of Georgia railway tracks between Marshallville and Fort Valley on December 14 of last year, culminated today in the marriage of Miss Elizabeth Benton, of Monticello, Ga., and Troy C. Davis, Macon lawyer.

Miss Benton, a teacher at Lanier High school in Macon, and Miss Miriam Sams, girls' athletic director at Lanier High school, were badly hurt in the wreck and Mr. Davis, who was driving the car, also was injured.

Miss Benton and Miss Sams were at the point of death at a local hospital for several days after the accident, having been brought to Macon on a special train. Mr. Davis visited the hospital every day since the accident. Friends of the young people say the accident tended to develop a love affair between Miss Benton and Mr. Davis.

This afternoon they decided to have a hurry-up marriage and in the presence of a few friends were married at the home of J. T. Holt, 109 Culver street, Dr. G. E. Rosser, of Wesleyan college, officiating. Ten minutes later Mr. and Mrs. Davis were speeding toward Atlanta in an auto on their honeymoon trip.

They will return to Macon Sunday night and Mrs. Davis plans to be at her post at Lanier as usual Monday morning.

The bride is an attractive young woman, a graduate of Wesleyan college, and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Benton, of Monticello.

Very Weak

The above portrait is that of Mrs. Martha Peltrey, of the town of Elkfork, Ky., who suffered for a long time with troubles from which she could obtain no relief, until at last she took CARDUI, the Woman's Tonic.

In her own words, the history of her case was as follows:

"I was very weak. Was for 3 years no good to myself or anyone else. I just dragged around. It was a sight how thin I got. I had weak trembles all the time. My... stopped 3 or 4 months.

"One day I decided I would try Cardui, which I did. I took about 15 bottles right straight along. Now this was in 1919, and I have not had any return of this trouble. I am feeling fine. I gained from 90 to 154 pounds, and I will say a good word for Cardui whenever I can."

A medicine that will relieve such troubles as Mrs. Peltrey had, is surely worth trying by those who suffer as she did. Many other symptoms, due to such troubles, have also been relieved by the use of this well-known remedy. Full descriptions of many such cases are given in our "Cardui Home Treatment Book", for women, a copy of which we will mail free to any lady, on request. (Address: Drawer B, St. Elmo Sta., Chattanooga, Tenn.)

Cardui is for sale by all druggists. If you feel the need of a medicine to relieve such troubles, get a bottle today.

"The Little Nugget"

BY P. G. WODEHOUSE

Next Week, "The Sea Bride"
By Ben Ames Williams

"Whom do you mean?"
"Mr. Ford, of course—the woman who sent you here to see Oden—the woman who wrote you that letter."
"She did not write that letter. But never mind that. The reason why I wanted you to come here was to warn you against Sam Fisher. That was all. If there is any way in which I can help you, send for me. If you like, I will come and stay at the house till Mr. Abney returns."
"No, thank you," she said curtly.
"You don't trust me?"
"Why should I? White may or may not be Sam Fisher. I shall be on my guard, and I thank you for telling me. You told me you were engaged to be married. There is that letter, signed with Mrs. Ford's initial, imploring you to steal the boy. Why should I trust you?"
"There is this. You forget that I had got Oden to London; but I brought him back. I did it because you had told me what it meant to you."
"I don't believe you. Why should you have not your interests before Mrs. Ford's?"
"For a moment a mad impulse seized me to cast away all restraint, to pour out all the unspoken words that danced like limps in my brain, to make her understand. But the thought of my letter to Cynthia checked me."
"Very well," I said. "Good night."
"Peter! Are you going?"
Weakness now would be my undoing. I steadied myself, and answered somewhat abruptly.
"I have said all I came to say. Good night!"
I walked quiet to the village. As I approached the Peabody's a man came out and stopped in the entrance to light a cigar. It was my much-enduring acquaintance, Mr. Buck MacGinnis.

CHAPTER XXIV.
Once more I called the school on the telephone. It was Mr. Fisher's voice that answered.
"Good evening, Mr. Fisher."
"Gee! Is that you, young fellow? Are you speaking from London?"
"No, I am at the Peabody's."
"Can't you yourself away? That still in the ring? Say, what's the use? Why not turn it up, sonny? You're only wasting your time."
"Do you sleep lightly, Mr. Fisher?"
"I don't get you."
"You had better do so tonight. Buck MacGinnis is back."
"Where did you see him?"
"Coming out of the Peabody's. I'm afraid this means an all night sitting for you, Mr. Fisher."
"I thought you had put him out of business."
"Only temporarily. I did my best, but he wasn't even limping when I saw him."
"Thanks for tipping me off, sonny. It's a thing worth knowing. Why did you do it?"
"Because I love you, Samuel Good night!"
The clock on the church tower was striking 2 as I set forth the next afternoon, carrying my suit case, on my way to this school.

As I made my way through the grounds I saw Audrey in the distance walking with the Nugget. I avoided them and went on into the house. Sam, the object of my visit, would, I imagine, be in the housekeeper's room. I went there first, and was rewarded by the peaceful picture of Sam taking his rest.
"Hello, young man."
"Good afternoon, you seem tired."
He yawned cavernously.
"Lord! What a night!"
"Did Buck drop in?"
"No, but I thought he had every time I heard a board creak. I stayed awake all night. Take it from me, young man, it's no picnic."
"I'm sorry you had a disturbed night. You must make up for it this afternoon. You will find the beds very comfortable."
"How's that?"
"At the Peabody's. I should go there, if I were you."
"I don't get you, sonny."
"My meaning is that I am coming back here, and there is no room for both of us. Do I make myself fairly clear?"
"Trot along, kiddo, and quit disturbing me!"
"Mr. Fisher," I said. "I am physically stronger than you. I mean to turn you out. How can you prevent it? Mr. Abney is away. You can't appeal to him. The police are at the end of the telephone, but you can't appeal to them."
He regarded the situation in thoughtful silence.
"You are my jinx, young man! You're really set on my going? Say no more, I'll go."
CHAPTER XXV.
I went out into the garden to interview Audrey. She was walking up and down on the tennis lawn. The Nugget, lounging in a deck chair, appeared to be asleep.

She caught sight of me as I came out from the belt of trees, and stopped. I greeted her briskly.
"Good afternoon. I have been talking to Sam Fisher. If you wait, you will see him passing away down the drive. He is leaving the house. I am coming back."
"Coming back? But I told you—" "You said you did not trust me. I am coming back whether you trust me or not. The situation has changed since last night. You could have managed Sam. It's Buck MacGinnis now—the man who came that night in the automobile. He's dangerous."
She looked away, past me, in the direction of the drive. A stout figure, carrying a suit case, was moving slowly down it.
"I don't believe you!" she cried. "I don't trust you!"
"I had begun the second phase of this matter of the Little Nugget—the abandoning of Cynthia's cause in favor of Audrey's—with a clear idea of why I was doing it. I had set myself to resist the various forces that were trying to take Oden from Audrey, for one simple reason—because I loved her and wished to help her. That motive, if it still existed, did so only in the form of abstract chivalry. I met her with hostility."
"I don't ask you to trust me," I said. "I've made up my mind." "If you mean to stay, I suppose I can't prevent you?"
"Exactly."
The day dragged on and it must have been nearly 10 o'clock when the telephone rang. It was Mr. Fisher. "Hello, is that you, sonny?"
"It is. Do you want anything?"
"I want a talk with you. Business!"
"Can I come up?"
"It was some five minutes later that I heard in the distance the engine of an automobile. A portly figure got down and rang the bell. I showed these things from a window on the first floor, overlooking the front steps; and it was from the window that I spoke.
"That you, Mr. Fisher?"
He looked away from the door.
"Where are you?"
"I didn't know you meant to bring a party."
"There's only three of us—me, the chauffeur, and my friend MacGinnis." The possibility—indeed, the probability—of Sam seeking out Buck, and forming an alliance had occurred to me. I shifted by grip on the automatic pistol in my hand.
"Mr. Fisher!"
"Hello!"
"Ask your friend MacGinnis to be good enough to step into the light of that lamp and drop his gun."
"Presently Buck, humped as to the back and muttering, moved into the light.
"Good evening, Mr. MacGinnis," I said. "Just feel in your pockets and show a few of your guns, and then you can come in out of the rain. To prevent any misunderstanding, I may say I have a gun of my own. It is trained on you now."
"I ain't got no gun."
"Come across!"
A moment's hesitation, and a small black pistol fell to the ground.
"Now you will come in one by one with your hands up."
I showed them into the classroom and switched on the light. Sam rose to a point of order.
"Young man," he said, "I should like to remind you that we are here, as it were, under a flag of truce. To pull a gun on us and keep us holding our hands up this way is raw work. Do we take them down? We can talk just as well—speaking for myself, better—in a less strained attitude. A little rest, Mr. Burns. A little folding of the hands? Thank you."
He did not wait for permission; nor was it necessary. Sam and the melodramatic atmosphere were over and water. It was impossible to blend them.
"Well," I said.
"Let me explain," said Sam. "As you have no doubt gathered, Mr. MacGinnis and I have gone into partnership—the Little Nugget combine!"
"I gathered that," I said.
"Judicious partnerships are the soul of business. We form a strong team, sonny. My partner's specialty is action; I supply the strategy. It's the old proposition. We've had to buy you out. Your stock has fallen. In fact, instead of letting you in on sharing terms, we can only offer you a commission now. We could get the boy in five minutes if we cared to risk having a fuss. On the other hand, you've a gun and there's a chance some of us might get hurt, so what's the good of a scrap when we can settle it quietly? How about it, sonny? Fifteen per cent. is our offer."

I rose.
"Let me see you out. Single file, please!"
"One moment. Let's have this thing clear. Don't think it's only Buck and me you've got to tackle. All the boys are here, waiting around the corner, the same gang that came the other time. I shouldn't act like a bonehead, sonny—honest."
There was a kindly ring in Sam's voice which rather touched me. But he had overlooked one thing—the telephone. The police, I knew, had been profoundly stirred by Mr. MacGinnis's previous raid. When I called them up an army of willing helpers would swoop to our help.
I opened the door and we passed out of the classroom in our order of entry. I opened the front door, and they passed out.
"Just as the car was moving off."

CHAPTER XXVI.
Broadly speaking, there are only two courses open to a beleaguered garrison. It can stay where it is, or it can make a sortie. I considered the second of these courses. We might be able to slip unobserved through the grounds and reach the village in safety.
Is Oden in bed? I asked.
"Yes."
"Will you go and get him up as quickly as you can?"
"What's all this?"
Oden demanded.
"Listen, I said. 'Buck MacGinnis and Smooth Sam Fisher have come after you. They are outside now. Don't be frightened.'"
"Who's frightened? I guess they won't hurt me. How do you know it's them?"
"They have just been here. The man who called himself White, the butler, was really Sam Fisher."
"White! Was he Sam Fisher?"
"They have gone to fetch the rest of the gang."
"Why don't you call the cops?"
"They have cut the wire."
"Sam's a wonder," he said. "I bet you a nickel he wins out."
"We had better waste no time," suggested Audrey. "If we are going," I think we ought to try it," I said.

"What's that?" asked the Nugget.
"Go where?"
"We are going to steal out through the back way and try to slip through to the village."
"I took him by the scruff of the neck and shook him."
"Oh, all right!" he said. "Anything you like. Come on; but it sounds to me like darned foolishness!"
The Nugget's complaints, which I had momentarily succeeded in checking, burst out afresh as the rain swept in at the opened door and lashed our faces.
I pushed him out into the storm, still protesting, and we began to creep across the yard. Half way to the first point of importance of our journey, the corner of the coal shed, I halted the expedition.
From somewhere beyond the wall apparently near the house, sounded the muffled note of the automobile. The seize party had returned. But we reached the stables, the door clamped behind us, and I shot the heavy bolts into place. Footsteps clattered over the flagstones and stopped outside. Some weighty body plunged against the door. Then there was silence.

XXVII.
We could scarcely have found a better haven of refuge. The only two windows were small, high, and excellently barred. Even if the enemy fired through them there were half a dozen spots where we should be perfectly safe. Best of all, in the event of the door being carried by assault, we had a second line of defense in a loft. A ladder against the back wall led to it, by way of a trap-door.
"Of all the darn fool layouts I ever struck, this is the limit! What do those idiots think they're doing, shooting us up that way? Gee, and I'm all wet! Why couldn't we stay in the house?"
